46 ARE INDICTED IN SMASH-UP OF $20,000,000 NARCOTICS RING

They Are Charged With Conspiracy to Import Drugs — 16 Others Are Named as Co-conspirators.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (AP)—An international ring—said to have been smuggling up to $20,000,000 worth of narcotics into this country annually since 1950—was reported smashed today.

A federal indictment, returned Aug. 27 but kept sealed until today to permit arrests, named 46 persons as defendants. Sixteen others named as co-conspirators but not indicted are possible Government witnesses.

Federal agents seemingly were having trouble rounding up those indicted. The last report was that only nine had been apprehended.

Monthly Imports

Authorities said the ring each month had brought in from France and other foreign countries approximately 50 pounds of heroin alone, plus huge amounts of cocaine and opium, for distribution in the United States.

Head of the operation was Harry Stromberg of New York, who was the ring's "over-all director" for more than 25 years, a Government spokesman said. Stromberg had not been apprehended.

In furtherance of the conspiracy, the indictment said, Stromberg paid $40,000 to Nathan Behrman in a New York City bar March 26, 1954. Subsequently, it was charged, Stromberg received sums totaling $75,000 from Anthony Vellucci, named as a co-conspirator.

Behrman, named as a defendant, is in the state prison in Attica, N.Y., where he is on a 20-year sentence for illegal possession of narcotics in 1955.

Intensive Investigation

This indictment is the result of an intensive follow-up investigation predicated on the largest seizures of heroin and prepared opium ever made in the continental United States, United States Attorney Paul W. Williams said.

This indictment exposes what the government considers to be a complete international narcotics smuggling and distributing organization, from the purchasing group in France to the financial backers in the United States, and it includes the importers and the local and interstate wholesale distributors.

The scope of the investigation net was far-reaching and United States agents utilized the facilities of the French police, Scotland Yard, and police agencies in Italy, Belgium, Germany, Turkey, Cuba, Mexico, Venezuela, and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Williams said.

The ring used many "underhanded" methods in its operations and an untold number of customs inspectors were "corrupted" by it, in agreeing to facilitate the smuggling of narcotics through the port of New York, Williams asserted. Those inspectors have since been discharged, he added. They were not identified.

3 Former Customs Men

A list of defendants released in Washington by the Justice Department named three as former customs inspectors. They were listed as Herman Samnick of Queens, N.Y., Benjamin Danis of Brooklyn and Saul Snyder of Brooklyn.

The Washington list said Samnick formerly was stationed at Idlewild airport. It did not name the stations of the other two.

The ring diluted, distributed and sold the narcotics at fantastic prices, Williams said.

HENDERSON SAYS CRISIS IN SYRIA COULD IMPERIL WORLD SECURITY

Russia Reported to Have Made New Bid for Acceptance by the West as a Power in the Middle East.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP)—Loy Henderson, State Department troubleshooter, returned today from a Middle Eastern fact-finding tour and reported that Syrian developments might have "serious effects upon the security of the whole free world."

In reply to questions, he told reporters at National Airport that he had "a number of suggestions" which he would report to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles on how to counter Syria's apparent move toward the Soviet orbit. Henderson declined to reveal what these recommendations were but he handed Assistant Secretary of State William Rountree a sheet of handwritten pages which he said were views he had written while flying home from the Middle East. "It seems to me that the situation in Syria is serious—very serious," he said.

Even as Henderson was flying home from his two weeks' visit, Moscow reportedly made a new bid for western recognition and acceptance of the Soviet Union as a power in the Middle East.

The move was in the form of notes to the United States, Britain and France. The note to the United States was presented to Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson in the Soviet capital. Thompson rushed a summary to the State Department in advance of the complete text.

Rehash of Earlier Plan. Officials here understood that what the Soviets were suggesting amounted to a rehash of earlier proposals. The essence of Moscow suggestions on Feb. 11 and later April 19 was that Russia, the United States, Britain and France should issue a joint declaration setting forth principles governing their operations in the Middle East, including such things as condemnation of the use of force in settling disputes.

The main achievement of such a course would be to establish diplomatically Russia's position as a Middle Eastern power.

Henderson was asked by reporters whether he found evidence of alarm among Syria's pro-western neighbors over developments during the past month. The Turkish government has been reported especially alarmed at the Syrian picture.

"I don't believe I can say what Syria's neighbors said," he replied.

Henderson was asked also whether he believed the United States should now become a full member of the Baghdad alliance.

"Please, let's not discuss it," he said.

ANTI-SMUGGLING DRIVE IN LEBANON

BEIRUT, Sept. 4 (AP)—The government of Lebanon is clamping down hard on weapons smuggling across the border from its leftist neighbor, Syria. At least 15 persons have been arrested.

The government of this small pro-western country is considering declaring a state of emergency along the Syrian border, on the seacoast and at the airports to protect its security. Meanwhile, border and coast patrols and customs posts between Syria and Lebanon have been reinforced.

Small shipments of weapons have been coming across the border from Syria regularly for the last few months. Security and customs officers have already seized 30 submachine guns, 50 rifles and a large number of pistols along with 30,000 rounds of ammunition and a quantity of explosives.

Weapons and ammunition also have been seized in raids on private homes in the mountains. Government officials have declined to estimate how much has got through.

Arrests on Both Sides. Some of those arrested include Lebanese charged with both smuggling and receiving smuggled weapons as well as Syrians charged with smuggling them.

Weapons already confiscated were found in taxi cabs and private automobiles, usually hidden under seats, under guard and in car trunks. Some are believed to have been brought in by rail, and one shipment is believed to have come by sea.

The Lebanese government has made no official charges against any particular Syrian group in connection with the arms smuggling.

Responsible Beirut newspapers discounted reports that the smuggling operations were being conducted by the Syrian army's intelligence section headed by pro-Soviet Col. Abdel Hamid Serraj.

Refueling Stopover for Jet Airliner

Officials of Russian delegation to United Nations debarking from TU-104 jet airliner on arrival at London today for brief refueling stopover.

Russian Jet Airliner Lands In Iceland on Way to U.S.

It Will Be First Soviet Craft to Land
On American Soil Since World War II.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (AP)—Russia's TU-104 jet airliner, en route from Moscow to New York with United Nations representatives, landed at Reykjavik, Iceland, at mid-morning then took off for Goose Bay, Labrador, on its next leg.

From there the plane, a twin-engine jet, is to fly on to McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey, where it is due tonight. It will be the first Russian civilian aircraft ever to land on United States soil.

The Soviet embassy made a last minute request that the plane be permitted to land in the New York area. McGuire is 60 miles from New York. The Port of New York Authority, however, has a general ban on jet planes for their airports because of the noise factor.

Recently it suspended the ban temporarily for the twin-jet French-built Caravelle.

Yesterday the Port Authority said it would take steps to conduct a noise test on the Russian plane to determine whether or not it too would meet the low noise standard.

The State Department has also approved a flight of a second Russian jet.

The Russian jet's first stop was in London. At the controls are First Class Pilots B. Bugayev and I. Orlovskiy. The Navigator is N. Nersov.

The 3570-mile Moscow-to-McGuire flight was expected to take about 18 hours total flying time.

There were conflicting reports of the number of persons aboard the TU-104. A Moscow radio broadcast said 60 passengers boarded the plane but a news dispatch from the Soviet capital said there were 19 and a crew of 12, including three Britons. A transport ministry official at London airport said the plane carried 36 passengers.

At Goose Bay, an American pilot and radio operator were to be put aboard to guide the liner after it enters American airspace. The 12 crewmen boarded the plane in Moscow included three British Royal Air Force officers. It was their job to help navigate to London and Labrador.

Top members of the Soviet U.N. delegation are tentatively scheduled to leave Moscow aboard a second TU-104 Sept. 14.

The TU-104, a modified version of the Russian Badger medium bomber, cruises at about 490 miles an hour with a top speed of about 560. It is the only jet airliner in regular commercial service, with flights to Prague and Peiping.

The Soviets gave the Western world its first look at the TU-104 a little more than 18 months ago when one flew from Premier Malenkov to London with some aids for a tour of British power stations.

to organize economic co-operation between the two countries. A Syrian economic mission ended seven days of negotiations in Moscow and left aboard a TU-104 Soviet jet airliner for Damascus.

Poles to Visit U.S. Midwest. WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP)—The Polish embassy said yesterday a group of Polish farm experts will leave here Friday on a tour of the Middle West. The five-member delegation, which arrived in this country Sunday, will visit at agricultural colleges in Iowa and Wisconsin and confer with farm leaders in Illinois.

SOVIET SCIENTIST CITES PROBLEMS OF ATOM MISSILE

TORONTO, Sept. 4 (AP)—A visiting Russian scientist said yesterday the Soviet Union is experimenting with atomic powered missiles and high-altitude rockets.

The Hamburg (Germany) newspaper Die Welt said Sunday the United States is working on an atomic-powered rocket that will make Russia's intercontinental ballistic missile obsolete.

The newspaper's military editor, Adalbert Baerwolf, wrote that the Russian rocket would be built very soon.

Dr. Ivan Baradin, president of Russia's national geophysical year organization, told Canadian reporters that two main problems must be solved before nuclear fuel could be used for missile propulsion.

First, he said, an alloy durable enough to withstand the tremendous heat and force of sustained nuclear explosion must be developed.

The second problem, Baradin said, was production of such a continuing nuclear reaction necessary to propel a missile over vast distances.

OFFICIALS CHECK INTO BEATING OF ALABAMA NEGRO

Victim Mutilated by Group of Whites Warning Against School Integration.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch. BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 4.—State and federal authorities were investigating today the beating and emasculation of a Negro man by a group of white men who told him: "This is what will happen if Negroes try to integrate the schools."

However, the victim of the attack, Judge Aaron, has not been identified with any moves to integrate schools here. Negro leaders of such moves said they did not know him.

Aaron, 34 years old, had gone to the home of Coia Parker, also a Negro, about 10 o'clock Monday night near Tarrent City, north of here.

Two Carloads of Whites. As he talked with her, two carloads of unmasked white men drove up. They seized Aaron, blindfolded him and forced him to get into one of the cars.

He was then taken a short distance to an abandoned house where one of the men asked him: "Do you know me?"

One of the abductors then kicked Aaron in the face and he was knocked unconscious by a blow on the head. When he regained consciousness, he had been emasculated. He was found by two policemen about an hour after the attack.

He recalled that one of the men told him, before he was knocked unconscious, that what was happening to him was an indication of what would occur if Negroes attempt to integrate schools in the Birmingham area.

Nine Negro families filed petitions with the Birmingham Board of Education Aug. 23 seeking to have 13 of their children admitted to schools which now have only white pupils.

Two of the Negro families later withdrew their petitions. The School Board said the remaining seven petitions would be "discussed" at its meeting this Friday.

Public elementary schools began classes today, but no Negroes appeared at any school with white pupils.

There has been some Ku Klux Klan activity, including cross burnings, in this area recently, but authorities said they did not know if it had any connection with school integration.

Hammaraskjold Disputes Need For U. N. Charter Overhaul

Says Real Limitations of Organization
Result 'From Facts of International Life' in Atomic Age.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Sept. 4 (AP)—Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold took sharp issue today with critics such as Sir Winston Churchill who say the U.N. Charter must be drastically overhauled.

The real limitations of the organization, Hammarskjold said, are not the fault of the charter. Instead, he declared, they result "from facts of international life in our age which are not likely to be by-passed by a different approach or surmounted by attempts at merely constitutional reform."

Hammarskjold's views were outlined in a special introduction to his annual report to the General Assembly which opens its 1957 session Sept. 17. He dealt at length with the criticism of the U.N. and his own views as to its role in world affairs.

Concerned Over Attacks. The secretary general did not mention any U.N. critics specifically, but it had been well known at U.N. headquarters that he was seriously concerned by growing attacks from Britain, France, Australia, Belgium and other former staunch U.N. backers.

The British Foreign Office, for example, has been studying the possibility of weighted voting—a system which would give heavy U.N. contributors, such as the United States, Britain and France, a greater voice.

Churchill declared in London July 31 that he agreed with Australian Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies that justice was not being achieved in the world organization. He went on to say that the "whole structure may be brought to nothing" unless changes were made.

Hammarskjold stressed that the U.N. is not a superstate, but is an instrument for negotiation among governments.

"If properly used," he said, "the United Nations can serve a diplomacy of reconciliation better than other instruments available to member states."

He urged members to concentrate on broadening the practices of conciliation and negotiation in the U.N. rather than attempting formal charter revisions.

The Facts of Life. The facts of life which must be faced in the atomic age, he indicated, included the renaissance of Asia and the awakening of Africa with the accompanying "passions, fears and hatreds." These, he said, could "lead in turn to violent upheavals and to the ultimate disaster of war."

Another fact, he said, is that "nations and groups of nations will never again be able to live and arrogate judgment to themselves in international affairs in ways which were once a matter of course."

Referring directly to the question of weighted voting, he said: "I believe that the criticism of the system of one vote for one nation, irrespective of size or strength, as constituting an obstacle to arriving at just and representative solutions tends to exaggerate the problem. The General Assembly is not a parliament of elected individual members; it is a diplomatic meeting in which the delegates of member states represent governmental policies, and these policies are subject to all the influences that would prevail in international life in any case."

He asserted that the Assembly's requirement for a two-thirds majority on all major issues "should serve as a reasonable assurance to those who may not fully share the views that have been here expressed."

Illusory Victories. "In an organization of sovereign states, voting victories are likely to be illusory unless they are steps in the direction of lasting consent to a peaceful and just settlement of the questions at issue."

He pointed out that the Assembly has no power to enforce compliance with its decisions, but it can make recommendations for collective action by member nations. In the case of Hungary, he said, there was no compliance with the Assembly's demand for the withdrawal of Soviet troops, but neither was their any proposal by any member of the U.N. for sanctions or the use of force to obtain compliance.

PRESIDENT SIGNS AID BILL, TO NOTE EFFECTS OF CUT

Hints He Will Seek More Money If He Thinks Foreign Program Is Suffering.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP)—President Eisenhower signed the $3,435,810,000 foreign aid appropriation bill yesterday but said he was going to watch closely the effects of what he called the serious cut made by Congress.

This seemed to imply he would ask for more money if he felt the aid program was suffering.

The total in the bill is about a billion dollars less than Mr. Eisenhower originally requested, although he made some cut himself in his first estimate of needed funds.

In signing the bill, he noted in a brief statement that it provides for "substantially less than the amount I originally requested for this program."

"I will keep a close and continuous watch to see the effects which this serious cut has upon the program during the course of the year. The Administration will, of course, endeavor to administer the program as effectively as possible with the funds which have been made available."

The President signed 48 bills this morning before leaving for a Newport (R.I.) vacation. He took with him papers on some of the 37 bills still awaiting signature.

Action on these, including the civil rights and postal and classified workers' pay increase bills, will be announced from his Newport vacation headquarters.

Among measures signed today was a two-year extension of presidential authority to reorganize government departments and agencies.

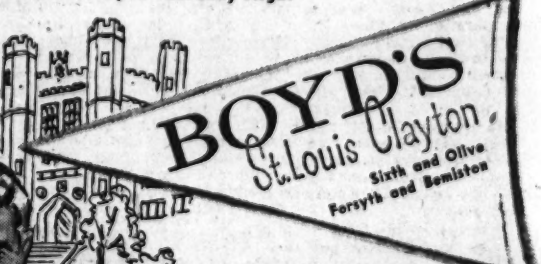

Except for making it easier for Congress to veto presidential proposals, the legislation extends until June 1, 1959, the broad reorganization powers granted to Presidents by Congress for many years.

Under the system, the White House sends Congress proposals for reorganizations of federal agencies with an explanation of intended savings or increased efficiency. Such plans become effective after 60 days unless disapproved meantime by either the Senate or the House.

ESTIMATE BOARD DELAYS HIRING EXPEDITER FOR BOND PROJECTS

Awaits Further Check on Legality — Draft of Ordinance for Neighborhood Rehabilitation Approved.

Employment of a special expediter for projects included in the $110,639,000 bond issue of 1935 was deferred yesterday by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to permit a further check into the legality of the proposed payment for such services.

The estimate board, composed of Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, President Donald Gunn of the Board of Aldermen and Comptroller John H. Poelker, also took the following actions:

Approved the draft of a proposed ordinance to re-establish a fund for neighborhood rehabilitation work.

Granted the water division permission to participate in a study to be made of pollution of the Missouri river.

Received the report of an appraiser appointed to determine the value of land in the Columbia Bottoms airport site.

Hiring of Thomas W. Ryan, an engineer of Ferguson, at a total cost of $65,000 to push a bond issue construction program for the next 42 months, was deferred at the request of Mayor Raymond R. Tucker.

Questions of Legality. The Mayor told the board he earlier had approved the appointment of Ryan upon the assurance that the method of appointment was legal. He said that while he was on vacation questions of legality had been raised, and he wanted to inquire into these before proceeding further.

A proposed contract with Ryan for consulting engineering services in pushing the construction program was approved earlier by the Citizens Bond Issue Supervisory Committee and by the Board of Public Service.

The approval of the latter body was given after City Counselor James V. Frank said the employment was possible under a provision of the charter which permits the city to contract for certain special professional and technical services.

Board's Approval Needed. Approval of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment is necessary, however, Frank held, before the Board of Public Service can enter into such a contract.

The Mayor said yesterday the questions of legality he is seeking to resolve were other than those involved in charter provisions.

He did not specify what these are, but some aldermen have raised the question as to whether funds appropriated earlier for engineering work in the preparation of plans for specific construction projects can be spent for work tending to expedite and co-ordinate the general construction program.

The bill to re-establish the neighborhood rehabilitation fund would earmark the proceeds from the sale of city-owned properties to finance the city's share of neighborhood improvements.

An earlier measure of this nature was repealed last summer by the Board of Aldermen and the money which had been accumulated in the fund was appropriated for municipal operating expenses.

Missouri River Study. The study of Missouri river pollution will be made under the direction of the Missouri Division of Health, Co-operating in the study will be the cities of St. Louis and Kansas City, the Federal Government, the St. Louis County Water Co. and Washington University. The estimate board authorized the local water division to provide $1000 as the city's share in financing this study.

The appraiser's report on the Columbia Bottoms site fixed the value of the tract for its present farming purposes at $1,230,000, the approximate cost to the city of the acquisition of the land prior to 1949.

The appraisal, made by J. P. Bentley, was requested by the Board of Estimate after the Bi-State Development Agency inquired as to whether the city would consider selling the 4280-acre tract to the agency for development of large industrial sites.

Cost of Development High. Bentley said the site offers great possibilities for industrial purposes, but cost of development of the area would be as high as $10,000 an acre.

After flood control work is done and other necessary facilities are installed, Bentley estimated that 3700 acres would be salable at an average price of about $12,500 an acre.

BULLDOZER PRINTS ARE CLUE TO FIVE MISSING GARAGES

MEDIA, Pa., Sept. 4 (AP)—Five garages are missing in nearby Concorville today and state police blame an interior decorator, a bulldozer driver and a few beers.

The garages used to be behind the home of Donald Baeshore, the decorator. He thought they were an eyesore. State police said today Baeshore talked about them over beers in a bar two weeks ago with a bulldozer operator, Charles Bennett. They said Bennett offered to get rid of the offending garages.

The garages were pushed into a nearby ravine and all but buried beneath five tons of dirt. The biggest clue to their disappearance was the bulldozer tracks.

The tracks led to Bennett, police said, and Bennett led to Baeshore. Police led both men to Justice of the Peace A. Randall Mathews, who held them in $1000 bail each for a further hearing on malicious mischief charges.

The garages were owned by Concord Foods, Inc., which took a dim view of the whole thing.

FIVE ST. LOUISANS INDICTED BY JURY IN KANSAS CITY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 4.—The Jackson county grand jury indicted yesterday five St. Louis residents on charges of operating a confidence game in connection with alleged sales of advertising for a publication called Catholic Guide Service.

Those named were listed by the jury as: Robert J. McComy; his brother, Lloyd McComy; Amos Charles Geldner, Earl A. Swallow and Margaret Joseph Warrants for their appearance in circuit court were issued for the five, who are free on bond.

Officials of the St. Louis Better Business Bureau said the McComy brothers and Swallow operate a State Sheriff's News, the Catholic Guide Service, and the City Hall Guide Service. Catholic church officials have said the church has no connection with the Catholic Guide Service. Swallow was arrested July 19 for allegedly violating a St. Louis ordinance prohibiting solicitation of advertising for unauthorized directories.

OVERCOME BY 'BLACK DAMP' GAS, SEWER FOREMAN DIES

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Sept. 4 (AP)—Evansville's sewer superintendent died and 12 other persons were hospitalized today from what was described as "black damp" gas in a new sewer pumping station.

Superintendent Louis Duncan, 58 years old, a former Evansville labor leader, was pronounced dead on arrival at Deaconess Hospital after he was overcome in an underground settling basin.

Ten of the injured were overcome in frenzied rescue work. Fire Chief Clarence Bassemmer said "black damp" gas seeped into the new station, forcing oxygen out of the lower level into the settling basin. The new pumping plant is on the Ohio river bank at the mouth of Pigeon creek. Just completed, it is intended to lift sewage from the city's new west side into an interceptor sewer running to a new west side sewer treatment plant.

LAND-USE MAP COMPLETED FOR FEE FEE CREEK AREA

The staff of the St. Louis County Planning Commission announced last night it had completed maps showing the use to which land is put in the so-called Fee Fee Creek area, representing about 5 per cent of the county.

Wagner, county planning director, said the maps will be used by the commission as a guide in considering requests for zoning changes until the county has a complete land-use map and zoning program.

The Fee Fee Creek area is bounded by Olive Street road on the south, St. Charles road on the north, Lindbergh boulevard on the east and the Missouri river on the west.

DISMISSAL OF GARAGE SUIT UNDER ADVISEMENT

Circuit Judge James F. Nangle took under advisement yesterday the city's motion to dismiss an injunction suit filed by the Glueck Realty Co. which would invalidate the city's program to establish municipal parking garages.

The realty company, which operates parking lots under the trade name of City Auto Parks, had filed the suit to enjoin the city from constructing a garage at Ninth street and Delmar boulevard. The city then filed a motion asking the court to dismiss the suit, stating its reasons in an accompanying memorandum.

The plaintiff was requested to file arguments in opposition to the city's request, but did not do so. The city thereupon filed the new motion asking for dismissal of the suit. The case has been pending since last October. Development of another proposed municipal parking facility at Sixth and Pine streets depends on the outcome.

A three-alarm fire early today caused damage estimated by firemen at $4300 in a building at 5190 Easton avenue. The fire was confined to the second and third floors, where the damage was about $4000, but water caused damage estimated at $300 in Big Jim's tavern on the ground floor.

The upper floors were damaged, having been damaged in a blaze Aug. 20.

MAYOR RECEIVES NEW AUTO WITH AIR-CONDITIONING

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker's $4850 Lincoln sedan was delivered yesterday, complete with air-conditioning, white sidewall tires, two cigarette lighters and a small dent in the rear bumper.

The bumper dent did not mar the sleek, black finish of the four-door sedan and was the result of a mishap when the car was being serviced. The dealer, lowest of three bidders, assured the Mayor the bumper would be replaced.

Mayor Tucker's 1934 model Lincoln, which had 86,000 miles on its odometer, will be taken over by Director of Streets and Sewers Frank Kriz. It is not air-conditioned. Kriz is turning in a 1930 Packard.

The Mayor took reporters for a ride in his new car yesterday. Passengers tested the air-conditioning and the cigarette lighters. Everything worked fine.

PROPRIETOR IS ROBBED OF $164 IN CLEANING SHOP

Frank Moody, proprietor of the Shoemate Cleaners, 4059 Chouteau avenue, was robbed of $164 yesterday by a man who asked for change for a $20 bill.

Moody told police that he was alone in the store when a man entered and asked for the change. When Moody went to his living quarters in the rear of the store to get it, the man followed him, stuck a hard metal object in his back, and demanded his money.

After getting the money, the robber cautioned him to stay in his quarters for five minutes and fled, Moody said.

ISADORE LONDE'S MEN APPARENTLY APPEAL TO GO TO SPECIAL JUDGE HOLDUP SEIZED

Comerford Disqualifies Self — Will Ask Supreme Court to Name Jurist.

The Missouri Supreme Court will be asked to appoint a judge to hear Isadore Londre's appeal from a police court conviction. Judge Louis Comerford announced today after disqualifying himself from hearing the appeal.

Judge Comerford withdrew from the proceedings at the request of a defense attorney, who objected to the court's ruling on motions filed in behalf of Londre.

Last April 22, the other court of criminal correction judge, David W. FitzGibbon, disqualified himself, on his own motion, from hearing Londre's appeal and sent the case to Judge Comerford on a change of venue.

An attempt by Londre to compel police officials to produce records he wants in connection with his appeal from a conviction for resisting arrest was rejected by Judge Comerford yesterday.

Judge Comerford sustained the city's motions to quash subpoenas duces tecum against Police Chief Jeremiah O'Connell, Capt. Andrew T. Aylward, Detective Chief James Chapman, Police Board President H. Sam Priest and former board head L. A. Long.

Londre, former convict who has spent 30 of his 54 years in prison, was also denied access to extensive police records relating to his arrests.

However, Judge Comerford turned down the city's motion to quash a subpoena duces tecum against Ralph Hyer, Globe-Democrat photographer, and upheld a defense request that Hyer produce a series of photographs taken of Londre in a hospital.

Londre was fined $250 last Nov. 13 for resisting arrest, after he suffered a broken jaw and four fractured ribs and spent 10 days in a hospital. He contended Capt. John Doherty, head of the police hoodlum squad, had struck him without provocation.

When Judge Comerford rejected Londre's attempt to get access to police records, Defense Attorney Irl Baris asked for time to seek a writ of prohibition from the St. Louis Court of Appeals to prevent Comerford from proceeding further in hearing the appeal.

The court rejected this request on the ground that such a writ was not in order.

Baris then filed a motion asking Comerford to disqualify himself because of prejudice.

Londre was released from the Missouri Penitentiary Dec. 9, 1935, after serving 16 years for bombing two industrial plants. Since then, he has been arrested more than 20 times.

THEATER IN AFFTON EMPTIED DURING SEARCH FOR BOMB

About 60 persons had to leave the Grand Theater, 8800 Gravois road, Affton, last night while police searched for a bomb allegedly placed there.

With the aid of the St. Louis police bomb and arson squad, the theater was searched. After a 45-minute interruption the patrons returned to the theater.

3 Ex-Convicts Found in Stolen Auto With Pistols; Handkerchiefs Ready as Masks.

Three men with handkerchiefs around their necks, suitable for use as masks, were arrested in a stolen automobile parked in the 5800 block of Waterman boulevard early today after a man and his wife who were robbed last January became suspicious of them and called a policeman.

One was carrying a loaded .38-caliber revolver. A second other revolver was found under the front seat of the car.

The three, all former convicts, are Donald L. Belshir, Vincent M. Gendron and William H. Stegall. Belshir, 25 years old, and Gendron, 23, told police they had no home, and Stegall, 24, gave an address in the 1200 block of Chambers street.

A policeman in the vicinity was called by John Chapnick of 5901 Waterman, who noticed the men as he and his wife were on their way home, shortly after 3 a.m. Chapnick operates a tavern at 620 Pine street.

Last Jan. 6 Chapnick was robbed of $1500 and a $1000 diamond ring by two men on the front porch of his home. Gendron was arrested as a suspect in that case but released after Chapnick failed to identify him.

Last Tuesday a masked man appeared at the Chapnick home and threatened to shoot Mrs. Chapnick if she did not open the front door. She telephoned police and the man fled.

The three held today were booked suspected of auto theft and carrying concealed weapons. Belshir was convicted of statutory rape in 1931 and given a two-year sentence. Gendron in 1935 served nine months in the Workhouse for larceny from a person, and in 1935 was placed on probation for three years in a Los Angeles burglary case.

Stegall was sentenced to three years in the Alagoa Reformatory in 1932 for burglary.

Albert Weathers, a former convict, of the 2600 block of South Broadway, was arrested early today on the roof of Frank's Florist Shop, 220 S. Charles street, after a policeman had heard him trying to break a window.

Patrolman Charles Billings, walking his beat, heard a pounding noise and investigated, and in an alley behind the shop he saw Weathers looking down from the roof.

The officer telephoned for assistance, including firemen with a ladder, and Weathers obeyed an order to come down. Weathers, who had a cut on one hand, admitted attempting to enter the establishment.

ELUSIVE PEACOCK FOUND HIDING OUT ON TV ANTENNA

The television antenna at the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Kerber, Ellisville, has become the nocturnal resting place for Peter, a peacock which wandered 10 days ago from the home of its owner, Jack N. Brandt, 10 Conwoods lane, West Wood village, he reported today.

"What's more," Brandt related, "the bird won't stay there in the daytime, but hops and skips off into a heavily wooded area nearby and hides out." Peter has shed its tail-feathers, making it appear more like a turkey, and Brandt is worried about that, too.

Efforts to capture Peter last Sunday were fruitless, Brandt reported. He will try again this weekend to bring in the elusive peacock. Meanwhile, television reception at the Kerber home isn't the best.

TWO WOOD RIVER SAFES ROBBED OF TOTAL OF $1300

Two safe burglaries in which about $1300 was stolen early yesterday were being investigated by Wood River police today.

The safes were in the Wood River American Legion Hall, where about $775 was stolen, and at the Eagles Lodge three blocks away, where the loot was $522.

Both were blasted open the same way, and investigators believed the crimes were done by the same men.

At the Legion Hall there was no evidence of forced entry from the outside, but some inside doors were forced and it was believed that the burglars had hidden in the building. An outside door of the Eagles Lodge was broken open.

Both places were closed Monday, Labor day.

30 DAYS FOR THROWING LEWD PICTURES NEAR GIRLS

A man who said he was Henry Overly, 1100 block of North Eighth street, was sentenced to 30 days in the St. Louis county jail and fined $24 yesterday after he was found guilty by Magistrate Norman Anderson, Jennings, of lewd conduct.

Overly, a refuse truck driver, was charged with throwing lewd pictures into Emerging avenue Cool Valley, last July 2 in front of three girls whose ages range from 10 to 12. Overly, 27, pleaded not guilty.

He said he found 187 pictures on his route and was tossing them away because he did not want them.

Others attending the conference included Eugene C. Farrell, chairman of the Authority, and Arthur Schwarz, chairman of the City Plan Commission, which also must approve the completed redevelopment plan.

the President's arrival for a New York (N.Y.) western Press secretary James C. Hagerly said Brownell was "under orders" to keep in close touch with the situation.

Like the other eight Negro students who attempted to enter school, Robert, a 15-year-old eleventh-year student, has been a straight-A pupil at Horace Mann High School for Negroes. He has four brothers and two sisters and his father works in the kitchen at Veterans Hospital at North Little Rock.

Asked about his favorite subject, he said it was mathematics. Under further questioning, he said he hoped to major in science.

Another of the students turned away was Elizabeth Eckford, 15, also an eleventh-grade student, who had previously registered at Central High School and had been approved for admission.

In a session last night lasting less than five minutes, black-robed Judge Davies, of Fargo, N.D., sitting by assignment, announced to a tense courtroom audience that he was directing the Little Rock School Board to "put into effect forthwith the plan of integration which you presented to a judge of this court and which was approved by him and the Court of Appeals of the eighth circuit sitting in St. Louis."

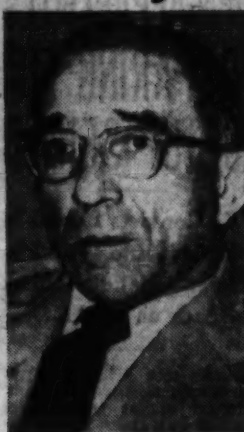

The court's order also included a reminder that its injunction issued last Friday on application of the School Board, prohibiting "all persons" from interfering "directly or indirectly" with the court-approved integration plan, "shall remain valid and in full force and effect."

Request for Guidance.
Guidance had been sought by the School Board in a petition to the court asking whether it should recall its request of Monday night that "no Negro student attempt to attend Central or any other white high school until the dilemma is legally resolved." The "dilemma," the board members explained, was brought about by the surprise move by Gov. Faubus Monday night in calling out 270 members of the National Guard and stationing them at the high school on opening day.

Yesterday, at a press conference, Gov. Faubus declared that he had acted only to "preserve peace and order," but when asked whether his guardsmen would give protection to one of the nine Negro students who had registered at the high school if he sought to attend classes with the more than 2000 white students, the Governor replied, "I doubt it."

In his brief statement while court was in session last night, Judge Davies said:

"Among other things, the Governor has said that: 'The mission of the state militia is to maintain or restore order and to protect lives and property of citizens. They will not act as segregationists or integrationists, but as soldiers called to active duty to carry out their assigned tasks. The public peace will be preserved.'"

"I am taking the statements of the Governor of Arkansas at their face value."

School Board Statement.
Following last night's court order, the Little Rock School Board and Virgil T. Blossom, superintendent of schools, issued a statement:

"The latest order of the Federal court is clear and the plan of desegregation ordered by the Federal court is still in full force and effect."

The Negro students who had registered, board members said, "will be notified they can come to school in the morning."

At the executive mansion after the court order had been issued last night, Gov. Faubus told the Post-Dispatch that he did not intend to remove the guardsmen.

"I'm convinced," he said, "that since the situation has gone as far as it has, if Negroes are integrated into the high school with the state of feeling that now prevails, that disorder would result. At what moment this might happen it is difficult to say."

Matter of Discretion.
The Governor contended that he was not in contempt of court because it was his responsibility to preserve the peace and "it is a matter of discretion as to what is necessary to maintain order."

Asked if he thought that the Arkansas controversy might lead to a test in court of fundamental questions of federal and state authority and jurisdiction, Gov. Faubus said he did not at this time.

"But it would be foolish not to recognize there is that possibility—not in the situation as it now stands, but as moves and counter-moves are made in this legal checker game," he added.

The Governor, in response to a question, said that his action in calling out the National Guard was not inspired by any suggestion of other southern governors. Such action had been advocated in a speech three weeks ago by Gov. Marvin Griffin of Georgia before a White Citizens' Council meeting in Arkansas. Faubus said he had not been moved by any concerted action or planning.

As to the source of his legal advice, Gov. Faubus smiled and said: "The relationship of lawyer and client is confidential."

State Laws Cited.

"We have state laws opposing integration in school districts where it is opposed by the people on this district," the Governor went on. "If the time comes when the people of Little Rock will accept integration, then that is the time to let the Negroes into white schools."

Asked when he thought that time might arrive, he replied: "Not this year."

Segregationists have referred to Judge Davies as an "outsider." He was assigned to Little Rock to aid in clearing a clogged docket brought about the retirement of District Judge Thomas Trimble, who has not been replaced.

Gov. Faubus said that he had not been influenced by the fact that the judge lived in North Dakota, but added that "it is possible that he is not fully conversant with the difficulties we face in this area."

Gov. Faubus was asked by this reporter if he were a member of either of the White Citizens' Council or the Ku Klux Klan. He said he was not and declared that it was "ironical" that he found himself in his present controversial position in view of increasing advantages accorded Negroes in Arkansas. He said he had aided in such matters and referred to peaceful integration of public transportation systems, admission of Negroes to the University of Arkansas for several years and to other state-supported colleges last year.

Negroes in Politics.
Only in Arkansas, among southern states, he said, are Negroes represented on both the Democratic and Republican Central Committees. The average salary increase recently given Negro teachers was higher than that for white teachers, he added, and called attention to state jobs filled by Negroes.

Gov. Faubus had declined to discuss the high school integration all day Monday, the day before opening date. But an hour before he began his radio talk at 10:30 o'clock Monday night, National Guardsmen had assembled at the school building.

Announcing in the radio address that he had called out the militia, Gov. Faubus explained that he was convinced that "it will not be possible to restore or maintain order and protect the lives and property of the citizens if forcible integration is carried out tomorrow."

"The inevitable conclusion, therefore, must be that the schools in Pulaski county, for the time being, must be operated on the same basis as they have operated in the past."

Testimony on Weapons.

The Governor has testified in chancery court last Thursday that purchases of pistols and knives by youths had been extraordinarily heavy recently and that caravans of segregationists were expected to converge on Central High School for a demonstration opening day. The state court enjoined integration in an order Thursday and the following day Judge Davies issued an injunction against interference with integration.

No caravans of demonstrators were to be seen yesterday. The Arkansas Gazette reported that it had made a thorough canvass of sporting goods and hardware stores and pawn shops and there had been no increase in pistol or knife purchases.

About 400 persons assembled at the school yesterday but the crowd was orderly. Classes of white students met. No Negroes attempted to attend.

Question on Contempt.

By the Associated Press.
Is Gov. Faubus, as the head of a sovereign state, immune from contempt proceedings?

The Governor himself says he does not know the answer to that one. And State Attorney General Bruce Bennett also says he is unable to give an opinion immediately.

Asked if he knew what action the Federal Government would take if he interposed his authority between the Governor and the people of Arkansas, Faubus replied: "No, and nobody else does either."

The Justice Department in Washington indicated yesterday that it looked on the Little Rock situation as serious. Officials said the Government's course of action would not be decided on until Attorney General Herbert Brownell had the facts.

Here are some of the possible actions the Government might take:

1. A high federal official might discuss the case with Faubus and Davies in an effort to work out a peaceful integration program acceptable to all.

2. Davies might bring about a trial for contempt of court.

3. The Government might take action to declare unconstitutional the anti-integration school laws adopted recently by the Arkansas Legislature.

One point the Justice Department will scrutinize closely is whether the Governor called out the Guard solely to maintain order or whether it was intended as a maneuver to maintain segregation.

The West has submitted an 11-point proposal. It called for air and ground inspection to guard against surprise attack, a two-year suspension of nuclear tests tied to a bar on the production of fissionable materials, and a start toward the reduction of conventional armaments and armed forces.

President Eisenhower told a press conference in Washington yesterday that the next move was up to Russia. But he said such a move "does not seem to be particularly likely."

Humphrey Says Eisenhower May Appear Before U.N.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP)—Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (Dem.), Minnesota, said today there is a growing possibility President Eisenhower may make a personal appearance before the United Nations General Assembly to dramatize western disarmament proposals.

Humphrey, chairman of the Senate Disarmament subcommittee, said his group had urged unanimously that the United States carry its disarmament proposals before the U.N. He said the State Department favors such a course.

"But some of us on the committee feel that a more effective case can be made out if President Eisenhower himself lays it out before this court of world opinion with all his international prestige as a man of peace," Humphrey said in an interview.

Pulitzer

Evening World dealt largely with the work of the American Relief Administration in Russia. After completing this assignment, Mr. Pulitzer did not return to newspaper work until 1930, when he was called in to take control of the New York World properties because of the illness and enforced absence of his oldest brother, Ralph. Meanwhile, he had lived for several years with his mother, Mrs. Kate Davis Pulitzer, who since the death of her husband in 1911 had maintained a residence in France.

Mr. Pulitzer was married in 1926 to Mrs. Charles Minot Amory, the former Gladys Mildred Munn of Washington, D.C. Two children, Gladys and Herbert Jr., were born to them and Mrs. Pulitzer had two children by her previous marriage, Grace M. and Charles Amory. Mrs. Pulitzer died in 1938. Miss Grace Amory was married to Allan A. Ryan in 1939.

Prior to becoming the chief executive of the World properties Mr. Pulitzer joined the Evening World again with the idea of associating himself eventually with that part of the enterprise. By the time he was called upon to replace his brother Ralph, however, the World was already in crisis owing to a complication of causes. This was in February of 1930. The World, (Evening, Morning and Sunday) was sold for $5,000,000 to the Scripps-Howard newspaper chain in February, 1931, and merged into the New York World-Telegram. This step was taken as the result of a joint decision of the three Pulitzer brothers, Herbert, Ralph and Joseph, acting as trustees of their father's estate. Because the Pulitzer will had prohibited the sale of the newspapers, it was necessary to obtain a court ruling before it could be done; but permission was granted after the petitioners revealed that The World had been losing money since 1926 and that its resources would be exhausted within three months. Here, as in other matters affecting their joint responsibilities, the brothers were in complete agreement.

From then until his death Herbert Pulitzer played no active part in the management of the Pulitzer newspaper or radio enterprises.

War Service With R.A.F.

At the outbreak of World War II, Mr. Pulitzer made many efforts, including an appeal to President Franklin D. Roosevelt, to join the United States Naval Air Force. By this time, however, he had lost the sight of his right eye and as a consequence was declared ineligible even for ground service. As a second choice, he volunteered for service in the British Royal Air Force in 1941 before the United States entered the war, was assigned to intelligence service and, according to an official citation, engaged in many missions of an "extremely hazardous nature." Later he became a senior intelligence officer with Wing 110 of the R.A.F. For a while, in 1942, he was stationed at Nassau in the Bahamas when the Duke of Windsor was then serving as Governor. Mr. Pulitzer's "most valuable services" to Great Britain and the Allied cause were officially recognized on May 24, 1949, by the British Government in a ceremony at the British Embassy in Washington he was inducted into the military division of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire with the following citation:

"Flight Lt. Pulitzer joined 110 Wing as senior intelligence officer in October 1944, in which capacity he rendered most valuable service both in England and on the continent, in furthering the good relations which existed between the Royal Air Force and our American and French allies."

"Flight Lt. Pulitzer, who is an American citizen, joined the Royal Air Force in June 1941, some months prior to the entry of the United States into the war, despite his mature age. He had a very distinguished record as a pilot in the American forces in the war from 1914-1918. Although handicapped by the loss of an eye Flight Lt. Pulitzer volunteered for service with the Royal Air Force at the time of Dunkirk and was finally posted to coastal command as intelligence officer in June 1941. In the course of these duties he completed some 20 operational missions of an extremely hazardous nature. At all times Flight Lt. Pulitzer did his utmost to foster good relations between Great Britain and the United States."

Big Game Hunter; Fisherman.

During most of his adult life Mr. Pulitzer was an ardent sportsman with a particular interest in hunting. He owned a shooting lodge in Scotland, which was turned over to the British Government during World War II, and hunted birds and big game in many parts of the world. He also was a deep sea fisherman. At the fourth annual international tuna tournament held off Cat Cay, the Bahamas, in 1947 he won the gold trophy with a prize catch of seven bluefish tuna weighing a total of 3384 pounds. His interest in outboard motor racing led him to establish in 1929 a perpetual trophy to be awarded to the annual winner of an outboard motor race around Manhattan Island. His military service in the First World War, Mr. Pulitzer continued his interest in aviation and narrowly escaped death in 1920 as result of a flying accident in France. Besides his activities as a sportsman he was an extensive traveler. He was widely acquainted in both the United States and Europe.

Throughout their lives an unbroken harmony, that extended to business as well as personal relations, existed among the three sons of the first Joseph Pulitzer. The younger Joseph Pulitzer was given complete authority and freedom as Editor of the Post-Dispatch. And as an acknowledgment of his success in the St. Louis operation he was voted generous compensation by his two brothers.

In the last years of his life the second Joseph Pulitzer continued a close and affectionate relation with Herbert. Joseph was particularly proud of Herbert's record of service in two wars.

Herbert Pulitzer maintained a permanent residence at Palm Beach, Florida, where his son, Herbert Jr., better known as Peter, now resides. He has three children. His daughter Gladys was married on June 27, 1949 to David F. Bartlett of Lake Forest, Ill. They have two children. In his later years he wore an eye patch and this together with his commanding height made him a marked figure in whatever gathering he attended.

With the death of Herbert Pulitzer the Newspaper Trust, which has controlled and voted the preponderant majority of stock in the Pulitzer Publishing Co. will be dissolved in accordance with the will of the first Joseph Pulitzer. Under the will's provisions the three sons of the first Pulitzer — Ralph, Joseph and Herbert — were bequeathed the beneficial interest from the majority of stock during their lives. Herbert received six-tenths, Ralph two-tenths and Joseph one-tenth. Benefits of the final tenth were ordered distributed among principal editors and managers.

While the Trust was operative, the heirs of the deceased beneficiaries continued to draw dividends from the shares held in trust. Ralph Pulitzer died June 14, 1939, and Joseph Pulitzer, Editor of the Post-Dispatch, died March 20, 1955. The death of Herbert, therefore, terminates the trust and puts into effect a further provision of the will. This requires that nine-tenths of the shares thus held in trust shall be distributed among the male heirs. The exact meaning of the term "male heirs" in this context will be subject to construction by the Surrogate's Court of

New York County. The remaining one-tenth will be sold to "deserving editors and managers."

The Newspaper Trust, whose first and succeeding trustees were determined according to the intentions of the Pulitzer will, voted the stock entrusted to it and in effect controlled the operations of the Post-Dispatch, Stations KSD and KSD-TV and the commercial printing interests of the Post-Dispatch. It exercised a similar control over the Press Publishing Co., which administered proceeds resulting from the sale of the New York World. Its trustees were Joseph Pulitzer Jr., who succeeded his father, the second Joseph Pulitzer, as President of the Pulitzer Publishing Co., Herbert Pulitzer and Charles J. Hentschell, vice president and business manager of the Post-Dispatch.

In addition to the majority of stock held by the Newspaper Trust, a minority of stock was and is partly owned by other than the main beneficiaries and their heirs. Most of them are members of the Pulitzer family. (The will of the first Pulitzer also made many other bequests not here considered.)

To set up an instrument which could preserve a continuity of management, a Voting Trust was established in 1950, by agreement of the minority stockholders and the grandsons of the first Joseph Pulitzer. The Voting Trust will be in a position to take over the functions of the expired Newspaper Trust.

Trustees of the Voting Trust are Joseph Pulitzer Jr., Raymond L. Crowley, Managing Editor of the Post-Dispatch, Dell Stafford, Treasurer of the Post-Dispatch, Hentschell and John G. Jackson, a New York attorney representing the Pulitzer family.

Negro Girl Attacked With Rocks After Leaving Carolina School

CHARLOTTE, N.C., Sept. 4 (AP)—A band of white students and spectators attacked a 15-year-old Negro girl with rocks and sticks today as she left a high school after registering as the first student of her race there.

The girl, Dorothy Geraldine Counts, was walking along a street headed homeward with the crowd behind her as she was struck lightly with a thrown stick. She was not injured. The girl also was spat on once. Police arrested 18-year-old Liston Wood Flowers on a charge of simple assault in the throwing of the stick, and Patricia Elizabeth Smith, 15, on a disorderly conduct charge in the spitting incident.

Officers said one other youth, who they said apparently was an instigator of the disorder, was taken to headquarters and questioned. He was released without charge.

Followed to Entrance. Earlier, a taunting group had followed the Negro girl up to the school entrance as doors were opened for students to register.

As she emerged after the brief registration session followed by class assignments, she said she expected the attitude of jeering students would pass off in about a week.

She reported that while seated in the school auditorium a white girl turned to her and said "I'm glad you're here." She said she heard another girl tell a friend, "She seems pretty nice." She said the white girls sat closely about her.

As she left, several in a small crowd called out, "Nigger, go home."

During her stay inside the school, she said, there were no incidents.

Outside, about 50 persons clustered beneath the window of the ground-floor homeroom to which the girl was assigned and shouted, "Nigger, go home." They remained there after the room's shades were pulled down.

City Police Chief Frank Littlejohn warned in a statement that he would tolerate no violence. But by noon, police had not dispersed the group outside the Negro girl's classroom.

Other Schools. The girl was the only Negro assigned to the Harding school, but there were three others scheduled to start classes today at previously all-white public schools in Charlotte.

Five Negro children, without fuss except for a small group of white hecklers, began classes yesterday at Gillespie park elementary and junior high school in Greensboro. Another was scheduled to enroll today at Greensboro senior high school. Police routed a small band of hecklers from the Gillespie school, one of them temporary chairman of a White Citizens 17 Negro Pupils Stay in Sturgis (Ky.) School.

STURGIS, Ky., Sept. 4 (UP)—All 17 Negro pupils who enrolled at Sturgis High School yesterday with the backing of a United States district court order today re-entered the school through a small, orderly crowd. The arrival of the Negro pupils, nine boys and eight girls, was marked only by a few shouts from a crowd of about 100 persons, largely school children gathered in front of the school. The Negroes got out of their caravans of four automobiles and a pickup truck and entered the building without incident.

Maj. Gen. J. J. B. Williams, state adjutant general, said as the Negroes went inside, "I think we might have it beat now. We had this thing whipped last year until the (state) attorney general handed down his order."

(State Attorney General Jo M. Ferguson last September issued an opinion stating that the nine Negro students attempting to attend the high school here at that time possibly attended illegally since the Union county school board had taken no action to end segregated classes.)

"I believe this is it," Williams added. "We'll now just have to see what kind of response they can generate at their (Citizens Council) meeting tonight."

The Negro pupils' arrival today was in marked contrast to yesterday, when a large crowd showered their five-car caravan with pebbles and members of the crowd threatened and cursed them.

Williams, who watched yesterday's disturbance, said he did not think the situation was serious enough to warrant calling out the Kentucky National Guard to maintain order.

Clinton Schools Open Without Racial Incident.

CLINTON, Tenn., Sept. 4 (AP)—Clinton High School's racial integration program began its second year yesterday with eight Negro students attending classrooms without incident.

The Negro youths—four boys and four girls—walked rapidly past the lone uniformed policeman on duty at the crosswalk in front of the school building yesterday morning.

At the door they merged with the stream of arriving white students and proceeded to classes without a jeer, taunt or even an observable hard look from the other students.

W. D. Human, the school principal, announced an hour later that there was a total student attendance for the day of 801, which was the expected maximum enrollment for opening day.

Human announced also that during the morning session, Ronald Hayden, 15-year-old Negro sophomore, was excused without prejudice and told to return today. He explained that the youth had not fully met the registration requirements and because first-day schedules were crowded there would not be further enrollment processing until today.

When the school session ended at 3:30 p.m., the Negro students left the building without molestation. They said, "Everything went all right."

A group of the Negro students posed for photographers on the sidewalk. Human came out of the school building and cautioned the students not to dally in the area. Throughout the day the principal wielded a firm hand inside and outside the school, checking the movement of traffic at the street corner and directing the white students not to congregate at the entrance or on the campus lawn.

Integration Begins Quietly at Van Buren, Ark.

VAN BUREN, Ark., Sept. 4 (AP)—Racial integration began quietly in this west Arkansas city yesterday.

Twenty-three Negroes began attending classes with hundreds of white students in Van Buren High School.

A reporter said a few adults were at the school at noon, but they appeared to be parents waiting to take their children to lunch.

A few Negro first-graders are scheduled to be integrated in nearby Fort Smith, the state's second largest city, today. Three Negroes were integrated into white schools at Ozark, in northwest Arkansas, Monday without incident.

President Urged to Stop Army Game With Tulane.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Sept. 4 (UP)—Representatives James Fulton (Rep.), Pennsylvania, today asked President Eisenhower to forbid the United States Military Academy from sending the Army football team to New Orleans to play Tulane Nov. 16 because of Louisiana's racial laws.

The Pennsylvania Congressman, in a telegram to the White House, asked Mr. Eisenhower "as a matter of fairness and as commander-in-chief" of the armed forces to issue a general order barring participation of all United States military service teams in segregated sports competition.

Eisenhower

City Councilman George W. Lawton and Mrs. Lawton.

The Presidential plane Columbus III landed at Quonset Naval Air Station at 11:29 a.m. after a flight from Washington.

The next leg on the trip to Newport, where the Eisenhowers will be guests at the United States naval base on Coaster's Harbor Island, was across Narragansett bay on the cabin cruiser Barbara Anne, named for one of the President's granddaughters.

Three of the Eisenhowers' four grandchildren, David, Barbara Anne and Susan, accompanied them to the Washington airport and stood by the White House limousine while their grandparents walked up the ramp to the plane. He may return to the White House for such a meeting Saturday, and he will speak at a small business conference scheduled in the capital Sept. 23. Those will be one-day trips.

There has been no official word on how long the Eisenhowers will vacation at Newport, but they may stay—if the weather is good—until close to the scheduled mid-October visit to Washington of Britain's Queen Elizabeth.

However, the President does plan to make some commuter flights from Newport for business conferences in Washington in the next few weeks. He may return to the White House for such a meeting Saturday, and he will speak at a small business conference scheduled in the capital Sept. 23. Those will be one-day trips.

Temporary Office Set Up. A temporary office has been set up at the naval base about a block from Mr. Eisenhower's living quarters. As was the case at Denver when Mr. Eisenhower vacationed there in previous summers, he probably will spend part of each morning in the office, then go out to the golf course or try his luck at fishing.

On the vacation side, the Eisenhower golf faces a real test at the heavily sand-trapped Newport Country Club. The course is just 15 minutes by boat from the naval base. The is plenty of fine fishing in the area. There are bass in fresh water ponds, and salt water Narragansett bay offers bluefish and mackerel. About 25 miles out in the Atlantic are some of the finest tuna fishing grounds on the East Coast.

Mr. Eisenhower was accompanied by a small staff of aids, two White House physicians — Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder and Col. Walter R. Tkach, and the usual Army Signal Corps detail which maintains an elaborate communication network linking the vacation headquarters with Washington key spots on an around-the-clock basis.

Three of the defendants are now serving prison terms on other charges, Williams said. They are Aron, in federal prison on a stolen bonds charge; Gelb, also in a federal penitentiary on a narcotics conviction; and Behrman.

Rosen is a well-known racketeer in the New York garment center, Philadelphia and Miami. In March 1954 federal agents seized prepared opium in one of his apartments.

U.S. CONSIDERING PROVIDING AID TO YEMEN AND SUDAN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (UP)—The United States is considering the possibility of providing aid to Yemen and the Sudan, it was disclosed today.

Officials said a team representing the State Department and the International Co-operation Administration left Washington last week for a fact-finding visit to the kingdom of Yemen. The mission will visit the Sudan later.

Neither Yemen nor Sudan has received United States aid in the past. Yemen recently received six shiploads of Soviet arms.

The Sudan did not accept offers of United States funds when Ambassador James P. Richards visited the Middle East more than a year ago. Sudanese officials said then they would give the United States aid offer "further study."

PLANE LOST IN VENEZUELA WITH 6 AMERICANS ABOARD

BARQUISIMETO, Venezuela, Sept. 4 (UP)—Planes took off at dawn today to look for a chartered plane missing in western Venezuela with five United States oil men aboard.

The control tower at Barquisimeto airport picked up faint SOS signals last night which were believed from the missing plane. Source of the signals was believed in the vicinity of Sarare, a village about 20 miles southeast of here.

The two-engined DC-3, carrying the five Americans and a Venezuelan crew of four, left Puerto Cabello yesterday on a flight to Barinas. The Americans, all employees of the Socomobli Co., are H. L. Benson, A. L. Clark, J. I. Martin, Roy Tribbey and Polidor Ormond. All are permanent residents of Venezuela.

BUSINESS HEADS IN FRANCE ASSAIL PRICE CEILINGS

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch
Special Radio.

PARIS, Sept. 4.—The high commands of both big and little business in France last night denounced government decrees fixing price ceilings on most industrial products.

The strongly worded statements from organizations representing both top industrialists and the middle and small business interests verged on outright rejection of government efforts to head off a new price-wage spiral.

The National Council of the French Patronat (similar to the American National Association of Manufacturers) condemned the price-fixing measures as harmful for the economy and designed to force business and industry to shoulder charges imposed by the state.

The organization's executive committee said it opposed the "arbitrariness of (government) decision which, misunderstanding the reality of production costs, accentuates the disorder in production and sales."

Price Freeze Opposed. A statement from the General Confederation of Small and Medium Enterprises said its members "will refuse under present circumstances a systematic freezing of prices."

It added that the confederation would oppose by united action any sanctions taken by the government against manufacturers or any business men who pass on their increased costs to the consumer.

A week ago Finance Minister Felix Gaillard, author of France's semi-devaluation of the franc, issued decrees holding prices to the level of July 31. He said at the time that increased costs resulting from a 20 per cent tax on imports would have to be absorbed all along the line of production and not by the public.

These new and vigorous protests against the government's price-fixing policy seriously threatened the success of the program which Premier Maurice Bourges-Maunoury had counted on to neutralize the psychological tendency toward higher prices resulting from devaluation.

Industrialists' Stand. The big industrialists said that in other countries solid and durable prosperity had been found by relaxing controls on prices.

On another front of the economic battle, Bourges-Maunoury conferred at length with top farm leaders in an effort to quell a rebellion by agricultural producers who are objecting to the government's whole farm policy.

The farmers' national federations have threatened to halt delivery of produce to market, including wheat and milk, and to man barricades on the country's highways if need be. They claim that agriculture in general is the poor relative of the French economy.

EX-KING LEOPOLD IN U.S. TO STUDY ATOMIC CENTERS

BOSTON, Sept. 4 (AP)—Leopold, former King of the Belgians arrived by plane yesterday for a scientific and economic study tour of the United States.

He is making a private visit to study peacetime uses of atomic energy.

The former King, who abdicated after World War II in favor of his son, the reigning King Baudouin, is president of a Belgian National Commission for the study of atomic science and its economic and social effects.

He said his principal interest is in visiting atomic installations and some of your great institutions and industries where atomic research is under way, especially Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Harvard University.

The former King said he "surely" would meet President Eisenhower.

In the party are Leopold's wife, Princess Liliane de Rethy and their son Prince Alexander; Ernest John Solvay, an industrialist friend of the King and president of the Belgian National Foundation for Scientific Research; Vincent Gatten du Pare, court chamberlain; a military aide, Lt. Comdr. Gerard M. Castelbarjac, and the Queen's personal maid.

BRITISH DOLLAR, GOLD RESERVES TAKE SHARP DROP

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Section

LONDON, Sept. 4—The British Treasury announced yesterday that its gold and dollar reserves fell $225,000,000 in August. The drop was the largest reported in Britain since the Suez Canal crisis of last year.

Officials said the latest figures were no cause for alarm and offered explanations to support their case. They said their hard currency reserves stood at $2,142,000,000 on the last day of August.

Last November, following the British-French landings at Port Said and the seizure of a northern portion of the Suez Canal, Britain's gold and dollar reserves dropped by $279,000,000.

Officials said part of August's slump was due to pressure the international money markets put on the pound sterling in a part devaluation of the French franc and the subsequent speculation on the possibility of the West German marking appreciating in value.

These operations were not a direct attack against the pound sterling, according to officials here. They said the pound sterling, a sort of bystander victim, remained basically a sound currency through the outburst of money trading last month.

The explanation given in support of this view was that holders of sterling had joined in buying West German currency against the chance of its revaluation and that the Treasury had to support large amounts of British money being unloaded in the international exchanges for speculative purposes.

Not all of the slump in gold and dollar holdings was used for support purposes. The Treasury figures made this clear by announcing that $38,000,000 of the reduction was paid into the European Payments Union to settle July accounts and that $24,000,000 was paid to union creditors in bilateral settlements.

On provisional figures for August Britain had a deficit of £63,500,000 ($117,800,000) with the EPU which as usual will be settled the following month with a 75 per cent payment in gold or dollars. The remainder will be written into the British indebtedness account with the union.

SENATOR CALLS FOR SCREENING OF CIA EXPENDITURES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP)

—Senator Henry C. Dworshak (Rep., Idaho, asked yesterday that some of the secrecy be stripped from the Central Intelligence Agency in order to fit it into the current Government economy drive.

Dworshak, a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said in an interview that he had written Budget Director Brundage asking for careful screening of CIA's operations and costs.

His letter pointed out that up to now the CIA has not had to present Congress the justification other agencies must make for their money requests.

At present neither Congress nor the public is told exactly how much money CIA spends, how it spends it, or how many persons it employs.

Operating funds are hidden by inserting them in appropriations for the Defense and State Departments and other agencies. The top ranking Democrats and Republicans on the Senate and House Appropriations committees are given general information about CIA expenditures but these classified facts are not even handed to other committees.

Airport Delay

nautics, said no decision had been reached on a site for the proposed new airport. He said he "would not even hazard a guess" as to when a site decision would be made.

O'Connor, after checking with top-ranking Navy officials, issued the brief statement about the project review in the light of the Navy's budget restrictions.

If a site is selected for the proposed new field, two years has been estimated as the time needed for construction, O'Connor told the Post-Dispatch.

Sites Recently Surveyed.
The Bureau of Aeronautics, working with the Navy's Bureau of Yards and Docks and a private firm of consulting engineers, surveyed several suggested sites in the St. Louis area in recent months.

It was learned last month that a site in Warren county, about 50 miles west of St. Louis, was being seriously considered by the Navy. O'Connor, however, said the whole matter "is under review in higher echelons," presumably in the office of the Chief of Naval Operations and the Secretary of Defense.

Officials were uncertain whether the existence of a second major airport for military and jet testing operations would have made it unnecessary for the plane that crashed yesterday to use Lambert Field.

While the nature of the equipment for which the plane was flown to St. Louis was not divulged by authorities, its installation required only a matter of hours and presumably might have been handled at a test flight strip of the type intended to accompany the second airport.

However, the presence of such a strip in an outlying area would not mean the end of jet take-offs and landings at Lambert Field since the planes produced in the McDonnell Aircraft Corp. factory there must be flown to the test site. Some will be returned to the factory for modification. Nevertheless, the number of landings and take-offs would be materially reduced by a transfer of all military flights to another site.

Meanwhile, Mayor Clement E. Helmsing of Ferguson, president of the St. Louis County League of Municipalities, said there he would ask the league to look into the status of plans for a second military airport and to urge that military and test operations be removed from Lambert Field as soon as possible.

"The area in the neighborhood of the airport has been very lucky so far, with fatalities limited to the pilots," he said. "But our luck cannot hold forever. We realized when we bought near the airport that there was some danger, but we must take all reasonable steps to improve safety."

Concurring with Helmsing, George A. Pittenger, councilman-at-large for Berkeley, said he would ask the city council to address a request to the Government to speed up plans for the second airport.

Earlier Crashes.
The two earlier fatal crashes near the St. Louis airport occurred on July 7, 1955, and Sept. 24, 1955. In the first accident, Albert Seawall Jr., a McDonnell test pilot, was killed when his Demon fighter crashed on the grounds of nearby Bellevue Country Club.

The second accident involved a Grumman Panther F9F which struck near Florissant road and U.S. Highway 66, killing its pilot, Comdr. Joseph F. Farley, aircraft maintenance officer at the Lambert Naval Air Station.

In addition to these, there have been a number of crashes and emergency landings in which pilots were uninjured or suffered only minor mishaps. On Jan. 25, 1956, Maj. Roy H. McDonald of the Marine Corps Reserve crashed his jet fighter into a barn, a house and several automobiles in the 3600 block of Elsa avenue, Overland. No one was injured, however.

A few months later, April 11, 1956, Lt. T. N. O'Neil of the Naval Air Base at Patuxent, Md., where yesterday's ill-fated plane also was based, narrowly escaped injury when he made a short landing at Lambert Field. The plane caught fire when the undercarriage was smashed but the flames were quickly extinguished.

Other Incidents in Area.
Other incidents in which some pilots were killed and others had narrow escapes at the airport and in the metropolitan St. Louis area follow:

Aug. 13, 1953, Lt. Frank M. Posch crash landed his Navy Banshee at Lambert after fire broke out on take-off. He was uninjured.

March 9, 1954, Gilbert B. North, a McDonnell test pilot, bailed out his Demon fighter after it exploded over Washington, Mo. He suffered burns.

March 17, 1954, McDonnell test pilot Chester Braun made an emergency landing of his Navy Demon at Lambert Field after his engine failed at 17,000 feet over St. Charles county. The plane caught fire but Braun was unhurt.

March 18, 1954, Lt. Comdr. Nicholas J. Smith III, a Navy pilot, was forced to abandon his plane, a Demon jet fighter, about five miles north of Alton. He parachuted to safety.

Feb. 23, 1955, John E. Todnem, a McDonnell test pilot, was killed when he crashed in a Navy Demon about three miles west of Grafton, Ill.

May 18, 1955, Robert H. Strange, testing a Navy Demon, was killed in a crash near Carrollton, Ill.

HUNGER STRIKERS PROTEST AGAINST STARVATION IN INDIA

NEW DELHI, Sept. 4 (UPI)—Fifteen members of the Socialist opposition today joined the hunger strike of two Communists and a Socialist against the government's failure to do anything about "famine and starvation" in the eastern districts of Premier Nehru's home state of Uttar Pradesh.

They said they would "fast until death" unless the Congress party government accepted their demands for help. They charged that 100 persons already have died of starvation and that several hundred others faced a similar fate if help did not arrive soon.

year-old brother, Thomas, and ran to the rear yard. Mrs. Dorothy Kelly, whose home is at 3213 Eltha avenue, east of the crash scene, was terrified at St. Louis County Hospital for shock suffered when particles of debris struck her house.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Ham were painting walls in the small home they had rented at 3210 Ruth avenue. Following the crash, Ham remarked, "We are getting out of here." Harry W. Whitworth, 9336 Velma avenue, reported that the concussion cracked a wall and a chimney in his home.

Part of Tank at Runway. The Post-Dispatch learned today that part of a tank from a jet plane was found beside the runway from which the plane took off.

Berkeley firemen were joined by crash crews from the Naval Air Station and the McDonnell plant, and by the Community and Kinloch fire departments. The crash trucks, specially equipped to fight oil fires, brought the blaze under control within 10 minutes through use of foam under pressure. Fire Chief Hugh Grandiff of Berkeley estimated the damage to the homes and two automobiles at $30,000.

The crash attracted hundreds of spectators, homebound at that hour. Personnel of the Naval Air Station assisted police in holding fire lines while wreckage of the jet was picked up. Pieces of the craft were scattered over a considerable area.

Normally jet planes use the 10,000 foot runway at Lambert-St. Louis Field, now temporarily shortened to 6000 feet because of construction work. There was speculation that had Lt. Renshaw been on the long runway when his plane caught fire, it might have been possible for the plane to have been halted by the arresting cable at the end of the runway.

Comdr. Lester Morris, Navy production officer at the McDonnell plant, told the Post-Dispatch the portion of the external tank found beside the runway did not contain fuel, but was part of a "buddy" refueling system. Other sections of the device were found at the crash scene. The plane had been in service on the East Coast for about one year, Comdr. Morris added.

Lt. Renshaw, 28 years old, lived at Centerville, Md., with his wife and three children.

MRS. ROOSEVELT GOES SIGHTSEEING IN RED SQUARE

MOSCOW, Sept. 4 (AP) — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt went sightseeing in Red Square today after spending the morning arranging an itinerary for her three-week stay in the Soviet Union.

The widow of the wartime President, who is staying in the National Hotel near Red Square, is mapping a busy tour. She plans to interview some of the Kremlin's top leaders.

With most of the Soviet Union's top brass away on vacation, Mrs. Roosevelt will have to wait until the end of her visit to see them. She is traveling as a journalist and will continue writing her daily column.

GRAY DENIES HIDING EVIDENCE ON WRITE-OFF

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4—Gordon Gray, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization, has entered a formal written denial with Congress to Democratic charges that he sought to conceal evidence in an investigation of a fast Federal tax write-off granted to the Idaho Power Co.

He has so forth the "facts" which caused him to plead executive privilege in refusing at one time to disclose to the Senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee the opposition of Secretary of the Interior Fred A. Seaton to Idaho Power's application for tax benefits.

Gray made his explanation in a letter to Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee, chairman of the subcommittee. He asked that the letter be made a part of the record of the inquiry.

Letter's Content.
The major premise of his letter was that he did not know that Seaton regarded his opposition as "an official expression of the position of his department" and therefore privileged as public information until four days after Gray claimed executive privilege before the subcommittee May 21.

Seaton had been in a hospital for a spinal operation and they did not meet in the matter until May 25. Seaton had expressed his opposition in a letter of March 11 to Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, Gray's predecessor as ODM director.

The meeting with Seaton resulted, Gray wrote, in an agreement on May 27 that Gray would furnish the Senate subcommittee with the original Seaton letter of opposition and that the Interior Department would provide the subcommittee with a copy.

Gray did not say so, but it has been known that the May 27 decision resulted from a White House conference in the morning before Gray's second appearance before the subcommittee to record Seaton's opposition.

Application Granted.
Gray granted Idaho Power's application for accelerated tax write-offs April 17 soon after he took over from Flemming.

The certificates covered two dams the company has under construction in the Hell's Canyon stretch of the Snake river on the Idaho-Oregon border.

Idaho Power gave up the certificates on the eve of passage by the Senate of a bill to authorize a single federal power dam in Hell's Canyon, key symbol of the public versus private power fight. It died in the House where federal Hell's Canyon advocates failed to get a bill out of committee.

Gray's letter did not disclose how he handled the Seaton letter to Kefauver beyond saying it was "because there have been public charges to the effect that I have attempted to conceal evidence" from the subcommittee. His explanation also covered why he did not produce Seaton's opposition in testimony of May 9, before the Senate Finance Committee which considered a bill, now enacted into law, to narrow the scope of rapid federal tax amortizations.

Tells Flemming's Views.
Gray wrote that Flemming had stated that "he felt that Secretary Seaton's recommendations grew out of a general disapproval of the basic criteria that had been applied to all cases" in the defense electric power goal under which tax benefits were issued.

Gray continued: "He stated, further, however, that he had not issued the certificates before leaving office because of his inability to explore the matter thoroughly with Secretary Seaton by reason of the latter's illness."

"In due course I concluded on the basis of my own judgment that certificates of necessity should not be denied under the criteria obtaining at the time of Idaho Power Co.'s application" (in 1954). My studies confirmed that Secretary Seaton's objections were not germane to the question of whether the governing criteria warranted issuance of the certificates."

Gray disclosed that Seaton's March 11 letter was withdrawn from the ODM file after he had talked with Elmer Bennett, then Seaton's assistant. Bennett since had become Interior Department solicitor.

Gray said that he and Bennett agreed the governing regulations did not provide for the type of recommendation made by Spahn and "therefore, did not have any legal status."

"It was agreed that the Secretary's March 11 letter could appropriately be withdrawn, the decision to issue the certificates having been made by ODM."

Gray also said that on April 17, the day he granted the tax write-off, Seaton's March 11 letter and a carbon copy were returned to the Interior Department following a telephone conversation between Bennett and Charles Kendall, ODM general counsel.

Gray said that these developments, including clearance by Seaton of a press release announcing the tax write-off grant, led him to believe that Seaton "did not regard his letter as an official expression of the view" of his department.

"Based on this belief (although subsequently the Secretary apprised me of the fact that my belief was incorrect) the Secretary's view were clearly privileged and I was under duty not to discuss them."

ENGINEER SAYS TRAIN'S BRAKES WERE DEFECTIVE

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Sept. 4 (UP)—The engineer of the train on which 183 persons were killed Sunday said today its air brakes were defective—or perhaps sabotaged.

Garnish Lurch said he applied the brakes twice as the train headed into "death curve," outside the hill town of Kendal. The brakes had no effect, and air pressure in the system fell off to zero.

"Someone either disengaged the angle cock in one of the coaches or the air hose broke because of mechanical defects," Lurch said.

"I gave three long blasts of the whistle to warn the excursionists that something was wrong up front. Suddenly, there was a loud sound, as if the heavens had fallen, and when I looked back my train was an unforgettable wreck."

Nine of the train's 12 old wooden cars jumped the track. Several of them tumbled into a ravine and broke up on the rocks. Some bodies are still believed to be in the splintered wreckage.

The train, headed here from the resort town of Montego Bay, was bringing some 1500 Roman Catholics home from a weekend excursion. Lurch could suggest no reason why anyone should have tampered with the brakes. It appeared unlikely that the brakes could have been put out of action before the train left Montego Bay, but it was not entirely impossible. Kendal is the high point on the line between the resort town and Kingston, and there would have been little need for brakes on the upgrade.

Earlier reports had ascribed the wreck to a broken coupling or a thrown wheel. There has been no official report so far.

By the Associated Press.
A 3-year-old girl was rescued unhurt yesterday from a pile of bodies in the wreckage.

Except for a scratch on her forehead, Barbara James of Kingston emerged unscathed. Her mother and father were among the dead.

She was the lone survivor in one of the coaches that plunged down an embankment.

MALAYAN REDS TO RECEIVE PEACE OFFER FROM AIR

KUALA LUMPUR, Sept. 4 (UP)—The Royal Air Force was ordered today to drop 12,000,000 leaflets over the Malay jungles in a final Government attempt to urge Communist terrorists to accept an amnesty.

The leaflets would inform the estimated 2000 to 2500 terrorists that they would be allowed either to:

Come out of the jungles, surrender, and remain in Malaya with their families without being prosecuted for "crimes they committed under the direction of the Communists";

Or surrender, and go to Red China with their families.

The Communists were given until Dec. 31 to accept the latest surrender offer. Military operations will continue in the interim.

Bomb in Theater Kills Woman. HAVANA, Sept. 4 (AP)—A bomb exploded last night in the women's restroom of a movie theater, killing a 25-year-old woman. Police, meanwhile, announced they had arrested 12 persons accused of belonging to anti-government organizations and of carrying out terrorist acts.

Beauty Rewarded

Manager, The Cunard Steam-Ship Co., Ltd.

My Dear Sir:

The philosophers tell us that there is pain in the contemplation of perfect beauty. Perhaps this is the reason that leaving the Queen Elizabeth after an ocean journey is a painful experience.

Everything is perfect beauty—the ship, the food, the service, the atmosphere. On fourteen crossings I have not been exposed to a brief second of discourtesy or lack of interest. All of this is not taken for granted.

I should feel like an ingrate if I did not express my appreciation. I feel that perhaps you are the one I should salute. My best wishes attend you.

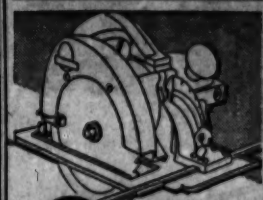

Yours faithfully,

7000 HERE TO GET ASIAN FLU VACCINE

Approximately 7000 city employees and hospital patients will be inoculated against Asian influenza when vaccine becomes available, Dr. J. Earl Smith, City Health Commissioner, said today.

Dr. Smith was authorized by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment yesterday to purchase from various sources about 10,000 cc's of vaccine. He said he did not know when the vaccine could be obtained.

The city inoculation program, which will cost approximately $3290, was advocated by Dr. Smith as a means of avoiding disruption of vital services in the event of an influenza epidemic here. There have been confirmed cases of Asian flu in St. Louis thus far.

Dr. Smith said employees of the city health and hospital division, jail and workhouse personnel, and inmates of the penal institutions would be among the first to be inoculated. Later he plans to give the vaccine to hospital patients and various city employees, including personnel of the police and fire departments.

Mrs. Edward G. Brungard, Director of Public Welfare, notified the Board of Estimate and Apportionment that she believed her department could absorb most of the inoculation program's cost.

The United States Public Health Service said in Washington last week that 30,000 confirmed cases of Asian flu had been reported in the United States. It has been predicted that the onset of cold weather might cause major outbreaks in this country.

Knowland Opens His Campaign For Governorship of California

REDDING, Calif., Sept. 4.—Senator William F. Knowland began a state-wide tour yesterday with an invisible campaign banner, "vote for me for governor in 1958."

The Senate minority leader disclosed, just before his first speech, that "some 70 meetings in the next 40 days would be merely a starter."

He had decided on a "two-lap" trip that would take him into every part of California and would run into November, thus almost doubling the number of talks he originally had planned.

In the first 40-day period, Knowland said, he would announce his decision on his plans for next year, when he is expected to challenge Gov. Goodwin J. Knight for the Republican nomination for governor.

He repeated his implied statement of last week end that he intended, if elected Governor, to serve the full four-year term. This would remove him as a contender against Vice President Richard M. Nixon, also a Californian, for the Republican presidential nomination in 1960.

Report to People. Knowland, who announced in January he would not seek reelection to the Senate in 1958, described his two-month tour as "a trip to report to the people of California on the congressional session just closed."

At a press conference at Redding, copies of an eight-page, single-spaced mimeographed document were handed to newspaper reporters beginning the airplane and motor tour with him.

Near the end it stated: "As long as I continue to hold this office of United States Senator, or any other office, I shall give it my full energies and I would not take any position on any other basis."

Did this mean an actual pledge of a full term as governor if he were elected? Knowland was asked.

In reply he traced his public career from California assemblyman to the United States Senate and said he had "never taken a job without being willing to devote my full energies and time to the office."

Judging by the Past. Pressed further on the full-term-as-governor theme, he rejoined:

"You only judge the future many times on the basis of what a person has done in the past."

Knight in declaring his candidacy for renomination had accused Knowland, without mentioning him by name, of planning to seek the governorship in 1958 with a view to trying for President two years later. The governorship would be merely "a pawn," as the governor pictured it. Knowland at Sacramento on Saturday had warmly disavowed using "any office as a pawn for any purpose."

Because of the time involved in a political campaign, would Knowland resign the Senate minority leadership? He had "no present plans" of doing so, he replied.

RAILWAY POSTAL FOREMAN HONORED ON RETIREMENT

Charles D. Shaw, who retired last Saturday after working 50 years in the Postal Transportation Service here, received an honorary recognition certificate today. The presentation was made by Charles S. Taylor, St. Louis regional manager of the transportation service.

Shaw, 5052 Mardel avenue, retired as general foreman of the St. Louis and Kansas City railway post office. In his long employment, Shaw accumulated 269 days of sick leave, never having used one day of sick leave. The number of accumulated days is believed to be a national record in the postal service.

American Flights From Here To Mexico OK'd by President

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 4—A unanimous decision of the Civil Aeronautics Board authorizing American Airlines to continue to fly from Chicago and St. Louis to Mexico City was approved by President Eisenhower yesterday.

The authorization for American will be effective from Oct. 30 until June 30, 1958, when a bilateral air transport agreement between the United States and Mexico will be terminated. An official of American said the airline had been operating between Chicago, St. Louis and Mexico City on a temporary certificate, and that the action by the President meant American now would fly the route under a permanent certificate.

At present American provides service from St. Louis to Mexico on four flights daily, an official of the company said.

Braniff Loses Out.
Braniff Airways had competed with American for permission to fly the route. Charles E. Beard, president of Braniff, said his line was "greatly disappointed" that the CAB had not designated it for the route.

He said the airline and communities affected had indicated there was "ample patronage" from the Central Plains area involved. Beard said he was pleased Braniff's United States certificate authorizing service to Mexico will remain in effect. He added, "We hope that the United States negotiations with Mexico will be continued so that we may eventually implement our certificate so as to provide the Central Plains area an equal opportunity, with other areas in the country, in the Mexican market."

Two Lines Foreseen.
Although denying Braniff's application, the CAB said its certificate authorizing service into Mexico should not be suspended.

It added that when the United States-Mexico bilateral agreement expires, it may be possible for both Braniff and American to serve the route. American was authorized to provide non-stop service also between Chicago and Mexico City. It will be the first such service by a United States airline connecting those two cities.

The Cabinet approved a plan by which the government will advance 20 per cent of the money to form an atomic energy corporation, nine regional power companies will advance 40 per cent and electric appliance makers, 40 per cent.

RED CHINA ABOUT TO OPEN
NEW ROAD LINK WITH TIBET

TOKYO, Sept. 4 (AP)—Red China announced yesterday it would open a new 780-mile highway linking southwestern Sinkiang province and Gaddak, in western Tibet, next month.

A Peiping broadcast called it the third motor road joining Tibet with the rest of China. It said the other two were completed in 1954.

The new road crosses the 16,000-foot Karakoram mountains. The radio said construction had been underway since March 1956. A round trip from Sinkiang to Gaddak previously took four to five months over old caravan routes.

SOLAR ENERGY HELD USABLE FOR ROCKETS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—Air Force scientists have just made discoveries indicating there is real prospect for building giant rockets and other high altitude vehicles that will obtain propulsive energy from sunlight.

An Aerobee-4 research rocket sent roaring upward Aug. 20 to an altitude of 130 miles at Holloman Air Development Center in New Mexico for the first time furnished Air Force research chiefs with what they consider "conclusive proof" that a vast reservoir of "chemically stored solar energy" exists in the ionosphere. "Fantastic amounts" of this energy are now known to be available in the ionosphere, which starts at about 50 miles above the earth and continues up to 250 miles.

The Air Research and Development Command today made an official statement disclosing that with this reservoir to draw upon, a rocket engine might be designed "to produce an internal release of energy by reaction with atomic oxygen in the upper atmosphere."

Such an engine, according to the command's propulsion experts, "would make possible practically limitless flights at pre-determined altitudes" of man-made earth satellites and "space stations."

George P. Sutton, national vice president of the American Rocket Society and one of the chief designers of Rocket-dyne division of North American Aviation working on long-range missiles, offered an opinion today that vehicles will be built taking off and landing with liquid propellant rocket engines and using solar energy at very high altitude.

The Air Force Cambridge Research Center in Bedford, Mass., revealed that the research rocket launched Aug. 20 established a record height for "chemical ejection experiment vehicles." It carried aloft a supply of sodium vapor which was released in flight after the rocket had penetrated well into the ionosphere so as to give observers on the ground "a continuous trail of light indicating great amounts of stored solar energy."

2 URGE NEGROES FIT THEMSELVES FOR SKILLED JOBS

DETROIT, Sept. 4 (AP)—Agreeing technical advances in the years ahead will require more and more skilled workers, an industrialist and a union executive today urged Negroes to increase their skills and learn new trades and techniques to share proportionately in the foreseen prosperity.

The men are Robert W. Conder, Chrysler Corp. vice president in charge of personnel, and Carl Huhndorff, research director of the International Association of Machinists. Their views came in separate speeches prepared for delivery before the national Urban League's convention.

"You can't put a man on a skilled job simply by wishing him there," said Huhndorff to the inter-racial group dedicated to economic and cultural equality.

"A Vicious Cycle." "The naked truth is," he continued, "that many Negroes are not ready to take advantage of opportunities that already exist. I realize that the Negro has operated in a vicious cycle in the past.

"Because he had no job opportunities in the skilled trades, he had no reason to develop his skills. And because he had no trained skills, he could not break into the skilled trades."

Conder told the delegates: "In my opinion the soundest way to improve the status of any major group is first to identify the areas of prime economic need that are clearly shaping up for the years immediately ahead and then to do everything possible to help prepare the members of the group to meet those needs.

"And if it is true that the need for people with skills and training and education is as great as it appears to be, the sound course for Negro leaders is to give maximum encouragement to their people in securing the necessary education and training to fill that need."

Negroes' Gains in Labor.

Huhndorff said that Negroes "have gained more acceptance and made more progress in a shorter period of time in the labor movement than they have in any other institution in American life." He added this did not mean that prejudice no longer existed in some segments, but "the walls of prejudice are tumbling down."

Conder said that over the next 10 to 20 years, "the basic fact to keep in mind is that the country as a whole will be hard pressed to find enough people to do its work."

Gov. Theodore McKeldin of Maryland told the league last night that "intelligent men, North and South, know today that the suppression of 10 per cent of the population of the country and 30 per cent of the population of the South has gravely handicapped the whole country."

"The economic loss is heavy," said the Republican Governor, "but probably even more heavy is the moral and intellectual loss."

TWO FINED FOR REFILLING PRESCRIPTIONS ILLEGALLY

Two registered pharmacists, Charles R. Davis of the 4900 block of McPherson avenue, and Francis A. Mueller, 6000 block of Queens avenue, were fined $600 each and placed on probation for one year today by United States District Judge Roy W. Harper when they pleaded guilty of refilling prescriptions for habit-forming drugs without a physician's authorization.

The pharmacists, both employed at a drug store in the 2800 block of Union boulevard, also were placed under 6-month suspended sentences. Each was charged with refilling three prescriptions. All the sales were in June and July of 1956. The charges were made under the Food and Drug Act.

PORTLAND VICE CASE CHARGES DISMISSED

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 4 (AP)—The state dropped conspiracy charges against Mayor Terry Schrunk and three other persons in the Portland vice investigation yesterday.

The indictments had charged Schrunk, former District Attorney William Langley, George Minelli, Multnomah county detective, and Clyde C. Crosby, teamster union officer, with conspiring to obtain wiretaps.

Involved was a raid made by sheriff's deputies on the home of Raymond Clark last year, when tape recordings were seized. The recordings later were used as evidence as Clark and his employer, gambler Big Jim Elkins, were convicted on federal wiretap charges. Schrunk was sheriff at the time of the raid.

The State Attorney General's office, which has conducted the investigation of vice in Portland, moved for dismissal on the ground the indictments did not allege a crime. A state circuit court judge then dismissed the charges.

Previously an identical charge against Brad Williams, Oregon Journal reporter, was dismissed. The indictments were returned last spring by what Attorney General Robert Y. Thornton called a runaway grand jury.

Earlier Schrunk and Crosby were found not guilty of vice charges, Schrunk on a perjury charge and Crosby on a charge he conspired to accept a bribe while a member of a city commission.

The only principal convicted in the year-long investigation is Langley, who was removed from office after being found guilty of failure to prosecute gambling laws.

Crosby faces several other charges and Schrunk faces a charge that he attempted to induce two women to give false testimony about Elkins's character.

MISSOURI POETRY DAY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 4

— An executive proclamation designating Oct. 15 as "Missouri Poetry day" was issued yesterday by Acting Gov. Edward V. Long. He wrote it in prose. Long called upon all Missourians to participate in and enjoy special programs to be arranged by schools, churches and others to accord recognition to the poets of Missouri.

U.S. WILL NOT PAY GUARDSMEN FOR LITTLE ROCK DUTY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP)

—The National Guardsmen who are enforcing school segregation in Little Rock, Ark., are acting on behalf of the state and cannot be paid by the Federal Government for such duty.

The Federal Government exercises general supervision over Guard units across the nation, numbering some 400,000 men. Control of the units rests with the states except when they are called into federal service.

Each state's National Guard is the state militia, with the Governor acting as commander-in-chief. The uniformed commander in each state is the Adjutant General.

In Little Rock, the state troops are acting on orders from Gov. Orval Faubus. He stationed them around Central High School under his powers to maintain order in the state.

The Federal Government provides most of the money used to support the Guard, but pays individual guardsmen only for specified drill periods and active duty training. Most of the Guard's equipment is supplied by the Defense Department.

SENATE RACKETS COUNSEL BEGINS DETROIT INQUIRY

DETROIT, Sept. 4 (AP)—James R. Hoffa's chief inquisitor in the United States Senate racks committee investigation—Robert F. Kennedy—was in Detroit today taking personal charge of an investigation in Hoffa's home city.

From an office in the federal building Kennedy arranged to direct for the time being an inquiry by the committee which has been going on intermittently for months.

Noncommittal except to indicate Hoffa's financial affairs would be a part of his work, the attorney for the labor-management racks investigating committee said he wanted to talk with "a number of people."

Kennedy arrived yesterday. Almost immediately he was at work. He talked to several men from Hoffa's Teamsters union, including Joseph Prebenda, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 372. Prebenda is one of the top men in the Teamster ranks here.

Hoffa, union vice president, is to be recalled to Washington for further testimony before the committee.

Kennedy said he would be in Detroit the rest of this week and probably a part of next week.

"There are number of people I want to have a small talk with," he said.

The Senate committee has said Hoffa has borrowed $38,000 from subordinates in the Teamsters union and from representatives of managements with which his union had contracts.

Kennedy said he did not intend to investigate the United Auto Workers while he is here.

Urges Chicago Joint Council Withdraw Support of Hoffa.
CHICAGO, Sept. 4 (UP)—The head of one of the oldest locals in the Teamsters union has urged the 150,000-member Chicago Teamsters Joint Council 23 to withdraw its support of James R. Hoffa in favor of a Chicago man.

Peter J. Hoban, president of Chicago Local 733, Milk Wagon Drivers, urged that a special executive meeting of the Chicago council be held to endorse Thomas J. Haggerty, secretary-treasurer of local 733, for international president.

Hoban made his proposal last night in a letter to Raymond Schoessling, president of the Chicago council. He said he hoped the special meeting could be held this week.

Hoban told United Press the move was made because "Mr. Hoffa's record is, shall we say, dubious."

In his letter, Hoban urged the Joint Council to "re-evaluate its decision (to support Hoffa) in the light of events which have occurred within the last 30 days."

He said Haggerty would be a top man for the job and could keep the Teamsters from being expelled from the AFL-CIO.

TRUCKERS CONTEST ILLINOIS ATTEMPT TO COLLECT FEES

Special to the Post-Dispatch, SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 4 —Two St. Louis trucking firms have filed suit in circuit court here challenging attempts to collect 1952 truck fees and taxes from them. The suit holds that the Illinois-Missouri reciprocity agreements exempt them from payment.

The firms are the Arthur Morgan Trucking Co., 2923 North Broadway, and the Daniel Ham Drayage Co., Second and Tyler streets. The suit shows that they have been informed that unless they pay the 1952 charges, their request for franchise plates for 1957-58 will be turned down.

In their suit the firms ask that the court issue a writ of mandamus preventing interference in their Illinois operations by the defendants, who are listed as the members of the Illinois Commerce Commission, the directors of the State Department of Public Safety, the State Highway Police, and the Secretary of State.

DR. ADOLPH SCHLOSSSTEIN ESTATE VALUED AT $955,459

The estate of Dr. Adolph G. Schlossstein was valued at $955,459 in an inventory filed yesterday in probate court. Dr. Schlossstein, 64 years old, died May 22 at his home, 3438 Russell boulevard.

The inventory included diversified corporation stock with a current market value of $919,086, and mortgages and bonds valued at $35,171.

A will filed earlier directed the establishment of two trusts of approximately equal amounts. The income of one trust will go to his widow, Mrs. Clara Schlossstein, during her lifetime, with the principal to be disposed of by the terms of her will. The income from the second trust will be shared by her and two sons, Fred A. Schlossstein, Topping road, Kirkwood, and Adolph G. Schlossstein Jr., Dallas. The principal ultimately will go to the physician's grandchildren.

TWO DENY SCANDAL TALES IN MAGAZINE

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 4 (AP)—Actress Maureen O'Hara and singer Dorothy Dandridge have declared on the witness stand that Confidential magazine stories about them were untrue.

The two stars appeared at the criminal libel trial of the magazine yesterday and testified for the prosecution against Confidential and Whisper magazines and their Hollywood agents, Fred and Marjorie Meade. The prosecution expects to complete its rebuttal testimony today.

Miss O'Hara testified that the story entitled "When Maureen O'Hara Cuddled in Row 38" was completely false. She has sued Confidential for $5,000,000.

She told the court that she was in Grauman's Chinese Theater in Hollywood only once each in 1953 and 1954, both times to attend premieres with her brothers.

A former Grauman's employee, James Craig, has testified he supplied the information for the Confidential story, describing love-making of Miss O'Hara and a Latin man in a rear row of the theater. He said it was in November 1953. Another defense witness, Michael Casey, placed the incident in February 1954.

Miss O'Hara testified that she was in Europe making a picture from Oct. 6, 1953, to Jan. 11, 1954, and produced her passport to prove it.

Miss Dandridge said a story entitled "What Dorothy Dandridge Did in the Woods" was "absolutely not true." She testified she did not walk or make love in the woods with white

JET EXPLODES NEAR SPEED OF SOUND, 3 SURVIVE

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 4 (UP)—Three airmen making a sonic simulated bomb run six miles above Houston made aviation history last night when their B-56 jet bomber plane exploded in the air.

Pilot, navigator and gunner were rocketed into a driving hailstorm in their automatic ejection seats and reached the ground alive after their 30,000 foot descent.

The $2,700,000 plane, based at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., crashed and burned on a Humble Oil Co. tank farm near Danbury, Tex., setting fire to an oil storage tank.

"They (the three men) are alive, but by all medical rules they should be dead," Lt. Col. John F. Schleter, commander of Ellington Air Force Base hospital said. "Their escape is miraculous—phenomenal!"

"There is only one other man in history who left a plane at the speed they did—and lived to tell about it," he said.

CONVICTION OF THREE IN TAX CASE IS UPHOLD ON APPEAL

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (UP)—The conspiracy convictions of three men involved in one of the largest income tax evasion cases was affirmed unanimously yesterday by the United States Court of Appeals.

The three, Hyman Harvey Klein of Los Angeles and Baltimore, a whiskey distributor, and two attorneys, Maurice Haas of Mount Vernon, N.Y., and Morris Alprin of New York, had been charged with evading $17,400,000 in taxes, and conspiring to obstruct the Treasury Department in its collection of revenue.

In their five-month trial in 1955 the tax evasion charge was dropped and they were found guilty on the conspiracy count. Klein was sentenced to four years and fined $8000; Alprin was sentenced to three years and fined $6000, and Haas was fined $4000 in addition to a two-year prison term.

George Burns' Son Arrested. BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Sept. 4 (AP)—Ronnie, the 22-year-old son of George Burns and Gracie Allen has been fined $50 and sentenced to spend a weekend in jail for speeding, but the sentence has been vacated pending a probation report. Young Burns appeared in Beverly Hills municipal court yesterday on a charge that he sped 35 miles an

Cadillac

To the Man Postponing a Dream!

The man you see above — watching a beautiful new 1957 Cadillac as it takes the sweep of the boulevard—is representative of a goodly number of American motorists.

He is a gentleman who would like to own a Cadillac car—but who feels the time is not quite propitious for him to do so.

Well, we have some sound advice for this gentleman, and for those like him, and it is this: Come in, sir, and see for yourself! For you will find an amazing and fortunate combination of circumstances awaiting you that may make further delay unnecessary.

First of all, you will find that today's Cadillac car is exceptionally practical.

In fact, its relatively modest cost, its wonderful efficiency of operation, its great dependability and its marvelous resale value mark it unmistakably as one of motordom's soundest investments.

And then you will discover that your dealer is prepared to give you a most generous allowance on your present car. In fact, the transition to Cadillac is easier today than it has been in many, many years.

And, as if this were not sufficient in itself, your dealer can assure you of prompt delivery on your favorite model.

In short, if you are the man who has been postponing his dream of a Cadillac, then your "golden moment" has arrived!

You should visit your dealer today—take the wheel for yourself—experience the marvels of Fleetwood luxury—and listen to the facts about Cadillac practicality.

He'll be waiting to welcome you—soon!

Artificial Arm Stolen.
JACKSONVILLE, Ill., Sept. 4 (AP)—Lyndie Johnson of Baylis reported to the Morgan county sheriff that someone stole his artificial left arm from his parked automobile in Meredosia Monday night. Johnson said the arm, made of fiberglass, is worth $1200. He has worn it since undergoing amputation after an automobile crash three years ago.

MALINE CREEK SEWER DISPUTE NEAR SOLUTION

The dispute between the St. Louis Metropolitan Sewer District and Chevron Sportsweave Co. over location of a section of the Maline Creek sewer through a tract of land owned by the company in Bellefontaine Neighbors was near settlement today.

The sewer district's board of trustees yesterday approved a proposal to relocate the 2000-foot section of the sewer which will pass through the Chevron property.

John P. McCommon, attorney for the district, was directed to press for settlement subject to final approval of William Q. Kehr, executive director of the district. Kehr was out of the city yesterday.

Tells of Agreement.

Raymond L. Hanson, executive assistant to Kehr, said tentative agreement on settlement of the dispute, which threatened to delay completion of the first 9000-foot section of the Maline creek sanitary trunk sewer for a year or more, was reached at on-site meetings of the district's trustees and Leo J. Rothbarth of the Chevron company last weekend.

Hanson expressed belief that the settlement would be effected this week and said he expected the contractor, the R. & M. Construction Co., would begin work on the Chevron property next week. Construction of sections on both sides of the Chevron property was practically finished.

Hanson explained that the original plans for the trunk line sewer through the Chevron property, together with reservation of a 200-foot-wide floodway area bordering the sewer, as provided in an ordinance passed by the sewer district trustees, would have left a strip of land along the northern edge of the tract too narrow for development.

Under the compromise agreement, the sewer would be moved 125 feet south of the original location, thus widening by that amount the strip of land on the northern edge of the tract and permitting development of it.

Seven Suits Pending.

A series of seven suits relating to the controversy between the district and the Chevron company are pending in various courts in St. Louis and St. Louis county. One of these attacks the constitutionality of the sewer district ordinance reserving a 200-foot floodway area bordering trunk line sewers without condemnation or compensation.

This ordinance affects four lots owned by the Chevron company at Bellefontaine and St. Cyr roads, rendering them useless for development, the company contends. Board Member J. Edward Gragg said yesterday, "It's not right to tie up a man's property indefinitely."

He suggested the validity of the district's floodway ordinance be tested through some other court action.

"If this is holding up the construction of the Maline creek sewer trunk line, let's find another guinea pig," Gragg said.

GOVERNOR DUE BACK IN OFFICE THIS WEEK

By the Post-Dispatch Jefferson City Correspondent
JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 4—Gov. James T. Blair, who has been away from the capital for about two months for medical examinations, an operation and a period of recuperation, is expected to return to his office this week.

Circuit Judge Sam C. Blair of Jefferson City, a brother, said today he expected the Governor to return before the end of this week, from Gaylord, Mich., where he has been recuperating and occasionally playing a round of golf as he regained his strength.

The Governor went to Kansas City last July 1 for some medical tests and was there until July 9, when he went by plane to Rochester, Minn., for further medical tests at the Mayo Clinic. He underwent a prostate gland operation at Methodist Hospital in Rochester July 15.

Blair was in Jefferson City about four days the first week in August, then flew to Colorado Springs on Aug. 5. About a week later he went to Gaylord, Mich., to continue his period of convalescence at the Hidden Valley Inn.

Lt. Gov. Edward V. Long of Clarksville has been acting Governor in the absence of Blair. Last week Long ordered seizure by the state of the strike-bound Kansas City Power & Light Co., under provisions of the state's King-Thompson public utility no-strike law. Striking members of the three electrical workers unions involved then voted to return to work pending further negotiations on wage questions.

ILLINOIS AFL-CIO MERGER STALLED BY JOB DISPUTE

CHICAGO, Sept. 4 (AP)—Merger of state organizations of the Illinois AFL and CIO apparently has been stalled by a dispute over naming top officers of a merged group.

The Illinois State Industrial Union, with 300,000 CIO members, and the Illinois State Federation of Labor with 900,000 AFL members currently are conducting separate conventions.

Committees of the two organizations had been working 10 months toward a merger with the hope that the merged group could have its first convention now instead of two. The CIO broke off negotiations nearly two weeks ago.

Joseph Germano, president of the state CIO groups, confirmed that a last-minute attempt last night to merge the groups had failed. He said the AFL had turned down a proposal to have one CIO executive officer among three officers leading the merged groups.

Reuben G. Soderstrom, president of the Illinois AFL, said, "We are willing to give the CIO representation on any state executive board based on their membership, but the CIO wants an executive vice president with the same stature as the president of the board."

BRITAIN'S LLOYD DEPARTS FOR VISIT TO YUGOSLAVIA

LONDON, Sept. 4 (AP)—British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd left for Yugoslavia today on a mission to counter recent Russian attempts to woo President Josip (Tito) Broz.

"I hope to have discussions in Yugoslavia on the international problems of the day," Lloyd said before leaving London airport aboard a Royal Air Force jet plane. "I think the importance of my visit is that it shows that two countries with different systems can have friendly relations."

Lloyd's visit is in return for one made to Britain in 1955 by Yugoslav vice president Edward Kardelj.

2 DAYS IN ELEVATOR SHAFT

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 4 (AP)—A man was found yesterday at the bottom of an elevator shaft in which he said he had been lying helpless for two days.

Richard Chambers of Dallas told police he fell into the open shaft in a partly torn down building when looking for a place to sleep. He suffered a broken leg and severe cuts on the face.

CHILDS

Stassen Complains to Friends That Administration Handicaps Him in Disarmament Talks

His Authority Cut and Officials Made Statements Contrary to Position at Parley—Economy Drive Also Weakened His Stand.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS

A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright 1957, The Pulitzer Publishing Co.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.

WITH THE PROSPECT that the stalemated disarmament talks in London will soon be moved to the arena of the United Nations, the propaganda battle between Washington and Moscow over blame for failure of these talks is bound to be intensified.

In the light of this battle what Harold Stassen, American delegate to the disarmament talks, said privately during his recent brief interval in Washington is of the first importance. With certain of the half dozen officials and close associates with whom he talked Stassen dropped the front of optimism he has maintained in public despite the way in which the Soviet Union has rejected out of hand the American proposals for arms inspection and control.

Stassen's attitude could, in fact, be described as almost despairing as he talked in strictest privacy of his difficulties. If you deliberately want to prevent achieving any arms agreement, he told at least two persons with whom he talked, then you do the following:

1. You make your proposals so complicated and so far reaching that the other side is almost certain to reject them.

2. You impose on the negotiator the necessity to check and recheck with officials back home before he can advance another step in the negotiations. In other words, you make it as difficult as possible to carry on from face-to-face discussion on the terms of a disarmament agreement.

3. You tolerate, if you do not actively encourage, officials who say publicly that there is no possibility of getting a disarmament agreement and that an agreement would in any event be unworkable if not undesirable.

While Stassen was careful even in his confidential talks not to place specific blame on officials of the Eisenhower Administration, he left no doubt that he felt he had been under a grave handicap during the London talks. On each of these three points he might have been pointing the finger at a dozen or more top military and civilian policy-makers in Washington, but he has suffered particularly with respect to points 2 and 3.

Authority Taken Away. His authority in London has been progressively cut out from under him in recent months as disagreements over the American position developed within the Administration. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles succeeded in having Stassen's brief of operating transferred from the White House to the State Department and he has never lost an opportunity to say the decisions being taken are his and the President's. A month ago Dulles flew to London to mastermind the effort to get agreement of the Western allies on an arms stand.

On one other score, too, Stassen was remarkably frank. He readily conceded that the drastic economy cutbacks in the Department of Defense were making his position more difficult. He expressed the fear that to the Soviets this seemed to be unilateral disarmament on America's part. Therefore they would feel under no compulsion to make concessions in order to reach an agreement.

One official with whom Stassen talked said his impression was of a man put out on the firing line in an exposed position with little support from the rear because he was entirely expendable. Stassen himself may have come to feel that he is a kind of sacrificial lamb in the disarmament exercise.

Optimism Causes Jokes. His persistent optimism is the source of much wry humor here with the cynics saying that there is nothing left of the disarmament talks but Harold Stassen's grin and even that, like the grin of the Cheshire cat in Alice in Wonderland, is rapidly fading.

Two forthcoming developments are more likely to put arms talks—and Stassen's position—in a new light. The Administration is said to have reversed its original position and to be ready now to meet the Soviet head-on over disarmament in the United Nations. Second, the Senate disarmament subcommittee is shortly to bring out a sharply worded report, agreed to at the present session by both Republican and Democratic members, criticizing the rigidity of American policy. This could bolster the role of the unhappy Stassen or it could result in removing him altogether from the disarmament tangle.

Eisenhower Relies on Patience To Solve Integration Problems

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP).

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER has been something less than vigorous in supporting federal judges who ordered public school integration in the South and then ran into opposition. Patience has been his motto.

Patience, in fact, has been one of his most persistent policies toward problems at home and abroad. He has been using it for all it is worth toward the problems arising from attempts at integration.

Mr. Eisenhower, who carefully avoids saying anything to offend Southerners, except for criticizing "extremists on both sides," has never said publicly he approves the Supreme Court's decision against public school segregation.

"I am for moderation," he has said, "but I am for progress." And there has been progress toward integration. Whether there would be much more if he spoke out forcefully for integration is one of the unknowns of history.

Use of Patience Again. He used his patience again yesterday when Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus blocked a federal court order to integrate Little Rock's Central High School by ringing it with National Guardsmen.

Faubus denied he was defying the court and said he called out the troops to keep peace and order, but he also said his action could possibly develop into a "south-wide test."

The School Board—which had been ordered by United States District Judge Ronald N. Davies, to integrate the school—interpreted Faubus' use of troops as an effort to prevent integration and ordered would-be Negro students to stay away.

Only a week ago Faubus had asked a state judge to prevent integration at Central High.

Mr. Eisenhower was asked about all this at his press conference yesterday. He said the Justice Department was investigating and "the next decision will have to be by the lawyers and jurists."

Thus he once again avoided becoming personally involved although this may have been cold comfort for Judge Davies, who had to stand by and see his integration order stymied.

Threat of Contempt. But the judge appeared capable of standing on his own two feet. Since the School Board, because of the troops, had stopped integration it faced the possibility of being found in contempt of the court's order to integrate.

So the board appealed to the judge last night. The judge promptly called the Governor's hand—taking him at his spoken word that he was not trying to prevent integration—by ordering the board to go ahead and register the Negroes.

This left the next move up to the Governor.

What would Mr. Eisenhower do if the Governor defied the court? He was not asked about it yesterday. But a year ago he went as far as he ever gone in explaining what he would do if a court were defied.

He did not actually explain what he would do. He simply said United States marshals should serve warrants. But how the marshals could serve a Governor surrounded by troops—or force him to appear in court—is a problem Mr. Eisenhower has not had to face yet.

Texas Rangers Called. Just a year ago the then Texas Governor, Allan Shivers, used Texas Rangers at a school in Mansfield, Tex., where mobs, resisting a court order for integration there, assembled to keep Negroes away.

Asked about this problem at his press conference on Sept. 5, 1956, Mr. Eisenhower said in part:

"Until states show their inability or their refusal to grapple with this question (mob action that prevents integration) properly, which they haven't yet, we'd better be very careful about moving in and exercising police power."

The mob action in Mansfield apparently was successful. Negroes were not able to register then—and now, a year later, none is registered at the school. Mr. Eisenhower has said the Supreme Court's word is law and he is bound to uphold the law.

But when asked that same day, Sept. 5 a year ago, if he endorsed the court's anti-segregation ruling, Mr. Eisenhower said, "I think it makes no difference whether or not I endorse it." He said he must uphold the Constitution.

Opponents in German Election

ALSOP

Adenauer, at 81, Looks Younger, More Vigorous Than 5 Years Ago

Powerful, Embattled Figure Seems to Take Over Center of Stage in West German Election Campaign.

By JOSEPH ALSOP

ESSEN, Germany.

BY ANY SENSIBLE TEST, the most important news in Germany today is probably a medical item. At the age of 81, Konrad Adenauer looks rather younger and is rather more vigorous in action than five years ago.

Five years ago, to be sure, the Chancellor of Germany was engaged in a day-and-night haggling match with the Allied high commissioners for the final, difficult termination of Germany's postwar tutelage. And when he received this report in 1952, he was visibly a very tired man.

After that, he marched into the 1953 elections like a giant refreshed. He came out, too, with an improbable triumph. He achieved an absolute majority for his Christian Democratic party in the face of a complex multi-party system carefully designed to prevent anything of the sort.

Today, the leaders of the opposition really appear to be deeply afraid that Adenauer will now pile the impossible on top of the improbable. At any rate, a main point in the opposition propaganda is a rather plaintive argument that it is "undemocratic" for any party to enjoy an absolute majority, which clearly suggests that Adenauer may get such majority for a second time hand-running. Needless to say, the Chancellor answers this opposition argument with visible relish.

Dominant Figure. Predicting elections, particularly other people's elections, is a foolish business. But one cannot help being absorbed by this German election simply because one cannot help being fascinated by Konrad Adenauer, who would still dominate the drama, even if he were doomed to defeat.

Outwardly, there is no change at all in Adenauer at 81, beyond a certain invigoration. He is still erect, still brisk in movement, still given to the same curious abrupt gestures, at once wooden and commanding. The voice is still deep, rather harsh and often edged with a biting irony. In the broad, seamed face the same sharp little eyes still peer over the world with the same mixture of hope and scorn, infinite disillusionment and passionate belief in the human future.

Inwardly, too, there does not appear to be much change in Konrad Adenauer. A serious talk with him is a return to the heroic period of the cold war when the peoples of the West had not succumbed to the delusion that the defense of freedom in the world is a second priority problem which can be solved at cut-rate prices.

Confident of Reunification. Divided Germany will finally be reunified, the Chancellor tells you with grim confidence, because the Soviet Union will not be able to maintain the present unnatural division of Europe forever. And then he adds, even more grimly:

"But I must be permitted to make another most emphatic remark. If the Russians think that Western unity is breaking down or Western strength is weakening, then they will never give way. They will hold out further. Always strong, always united, the West must also show that we are always ready to come to an understanding when the Soviets will meet us half way. But as long as Russia has not given way, the world will continue in a state of unrest. And so if we are strong, we shall win, and if we weaken, we shall lose the game in the end."

Yet this man who speaks this unbending and grand language on the great problems is also a wicked, political fighter when he takes to the stump. Here in Essen, he filled vast halls on a rainy night and there were fights at the doors among the latecomers.

Pours It on Opposition. He did not neglect the big issues. It was notable, in fact, that he got his loudest, longest cheers with a genuinely noble passage on the new Germany's dedication to European partnership. But during at least three-quarters of his hour-long speech, he was pouring it on the opposition as vigorously as Harry Truman in his heyday, with his little eyes flashing are interesting and deserve more extensive discussion. But with Adenauer on the hustling at 81, his powerful, embattled figure somehow fills the whole center of the stage.

German Labor Unions Out to Defeat Adenauer.

DUESSELDORF, Germany, Sept. 4 (AP)—West Germany's powerful trade union federation will try to deliver the votes of 6,000,000 organized workers to the Socialists in the nation's Sept. 15 election.

The success or failure of this effort could be the decisive factor in Chancellor Adenauer's bid for a third term. The Socialists, or Social Democrats, are Adenauer's main left-of-center opponents.

Labor can tilt the balance here in North Rhine-Westphalia, home state of Ruhr industries, and in other industrial states like Hesse and Hamburg.

The trade union federation, while declining to give outright endorsement to the Socialists, is going all-out to convince the working man that Adenauer should be defeated.

Adenauer is angrily striking back, saying labor leaders should stay out of politics. He hopes to wean workers away from their traditional tendency to vote Socialist. In 1953 thousands deserted the Socialists to help give his party an absolute majority in Parliament. In local and state elections later many returned to the Socialist fold.

All signs indicate that the labor vote will be split again in this election.

U.S. Yielding On a Regional Latin Market

Decides to Stay Out of It on One Hand and Support It on Other.

By JOSEPH NEWMAN

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Staff

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 4.

THE United States attitude toward a regional Latin American market, defined for the first time yesterday by Deputy Under Secretary of State C. Douglas Dillon, is to stay out of it on the one hand and to support it on the other.

Dillon, acting head of the United States delegation to the inter-American economic conference, told the press that the United States follows a policy of generalizing its trade relations with all parts of the world and, therefore, is unable to form a part of one or more regional markets in the western hemisphere.

Nevertheless, he continued, regional or common markets will expand the Latin American market, and, therefore, "we support them."

Dillon's remarks represent a favorable evolution in official United States thinking regarding a common Latin American market. Before the opening of the inter-American economic conference less than three weeks ago, the United States delegation was cool to the idea, partly because it suggested a new economic grouping in the western hemisphere from which the United States would be excluded.

Expression of Support. Now the United States appears to have swallowed its reservations, evidently aware that the opposition would create more harm than good, and to have gone so far as to express its positive support.

The United States refusal to participate in an inter-American common market differs from Britain's refusal to participate directly in the European common market.

Britain stayed out of the European market because it already is a member of a kind of common market represented by its Commonwealth and Empire. The United States is staying out of the Latin American common market because it does not want to form part of a special economic grouping in any part of the world.

That is one of the reasons for Latin American resentment to-

U.S. Presses for U.N. Assembly To Condemn Russia on Hungary

Seeks to Have Special Emissary Named to Improve Conditions in Red Satellite—Favors Thailand Prince.

UNITED NATIONS, Sept. 4 (UPI).

THE UNITED STATES today pressed its campaign for United Nations General Assembly condemnation of Russian suppression of Hungary.

A draft resolution handed to more than 60 U.N. delegations yesterday demanded that the special General Assembly session opening next Tuesday accept the report issued last June by a special committee on Hungary.

The committee, including Australia, Ceylon, Denmark, Tunisia and Uruguay, condemned Russia's part in putting down the Hungarian revolt last October.

The United States also demanded that the five-nation committee remain in existence to continue to investigate Russian intervention in Hungary. In addition, it suggested that a special U.N. emissary be appointed to do all in his power to bring about a betterment of conditions in Hungary.

Informed sources said the United States had no "candidate" for the emissary, but favored Prince Wan Waikayakon of Thailand or someone with his diplomatic "qualifications." Other names heard in diplomatic circles were those of Indian Defense Minister V. K. Krishna Menon and President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia.

The United States delegation handed its working paper to 60 delegations at the U.N. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, head of the United States delegation, met personally with representatives from the 20 Latin-American countries. Later he and his staff talked with other delegates from Europe, Asia, Africa and the South Pacific.

Informed sources hinted that Britain and the United States disagreed over the continuation of the special committee formed to investigate the Hungarian situation. Britain wanted the committee abolished with an expression of appreciation while the United States wanted the group to continue its work.

ward the United States. The Latin American republics feel that the United States has a special regional obligation to them. The problem of the United States is to meet the Latin American demands while preserving its interests and maintaining its obligations in many other parts of the world. The position announced by Dillon is an attempt to meet this problem by compromise.

In response to questions, Dillon said that there is little probability of an inter-American economic agreement until accord is reached on some of the problems related to it raised at the conference.

Told there is a general opinion in Latin America that the United States has not given enough aid, Dillon replied: "I think the record of the Export-Import Bank is such as to speak for itself." He said the bank had stepped up its flow to Latin America two and a half times in the last three years.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Two Who Should Meet

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The South County Civic Council, of which E. P. Crecelius is president, is waging quite a campaign against public housing in the county. It is circulating an initiative petition "providing for the declaration that there is now no need for a housing authority to function in St. Louis county." It is leaning very heavily on the report of the grand jury of St. Louis county, May term, 1955, which stated "that there is no present need for public housing of this kind in St. Louis county and the Housing Authority has accomplished the purpose for which it was organized."

As a result of this grand jury's findings, an exhaustive study was made by the Housing Authority as to the best method of handling the situation.

The conclusion was reached that the 926 units should be replaced with 350 units of new low-income housing to satisfy a need which still exists.

This is the goal for which the Housing Authority is striving. Successive grand juries have checked on the operations of the Authority, and the final report of the grand jury of St. Louis county, September term, 1956, states, "We find recommendations of the previous grand juries regarding the Jefferson Barracks housing projects are being implemented."

Thus it appears that the Housing Authority's action to replace the 926 units of substandard housing with 350 units of decent, safe and sanitary housing is a wise and happy decision.

Ernest W. Dohack was a member of that 1956 grand jury which stated, "We find recommendations of the previous grand juries regarding the Jefferson Barracks housing projects are being implemented."

Mr. Dohack was and is a director of the Lemay Bank and Trust Co. Mr. Crecelius was and is the president of the Lemay Bank and Trust Co.

Why doesn't Mr. Crecelius check with Mr. Dohack?

PETER H. PINSKER,
Chairman, Jefferson Barracks Tenants' Association.

When There's Nothing to Do

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

As an old man I agree with the letter proposing that older men be allowed to fish in the public parks. The schools are opening and children won't be fishing. The fishing privilege is something the old men would appreciate. It is no so nice to be at home all day with nothing to do. Fishing would keep our minds occupied for a few hours for at least a couple of days a week.

CHARLES LOPEZ.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The best joke of the year is the proposal by Walter Reuther that the manufacturers cut the price of automobiles $100 and this would stop inflation.

Well, for Mr. Reuther's information the automobile manufacturers do not manufacture food and clothing, which are also out of reach of the people who must live on the small income from Social Security and others with fixed means.

Now, if they are interested in stopping inflation they will start by asking organized labor to take a 25-cent-an-hour cut in wages, and you will see prosperity as you have never seen it before and the automobile manufacturers will cut their prices not only $100 but maybe as much as $250 to $300.

Common sense should tell any man that where wages go up it increases the cost of production and this cost must be made up somewhere.

Working people are no better off today than when they earned $50 per week. The only difference is that they are handling more money but are not getting any more with a 35-cent dollar, all the fault of their silly demands.

Yes, I too, was a union man before my retirement, and I never could agree with labor's demands. When there is a strike, stop the pay of the labor leaders and there won't be any strikes. Don't keep them in office so long. Change them every two or three years and things will be better.

DISGUSTED FORMER UNION MAN.

Politicians on Billboards

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

With reference to your recent editorial condemning billboards, I would like to suggest that the politicians who are presently shedding crocodile tears for the plight of the country's scenery should be reminded of this when election time rolls around.

Nothing is more obnoxious to me than the sight of thousands of placards, signs and billboards of various shapes and sizes extolling the virtues of the man running for office.

Does the politician consider the aesthetic value of our scenery when he nails his signs to every tree, fence and telephone pole? And why doesn't he remove his signs after election day?

Let's give the lovely ladies of the garden clubs something worthwhile to fret about—remember, an idle mind is a devil's workshop!

ROBERT SHERRARD,
Kirkwood.

Germans Try U.S. Style

West Germany will be going to the polls in less than two weeks and, after a campaign which Americans would find quite familiar, it seems that victory is assured for Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, seeking a third term in his eighty-second year.

If all Germans could vote for Dr. Adenauer as in an American presidential election, he might win by a landslide. But even though they can only vote for the parliamentary candidate of his party in a given district, his Christian Democrats are conceded at least enough votes to dominate another coalition in Bonn.

As in the last national campaign in the United States, the slogan of the German incumbents is "Peace and Prosperity"—with most of the emphasis on prosperity. Indeed, it is being called a "stomach" election.

The spartan Dr. Adenauer, who ordinarily leaves bread and butter to others, especially Economics Minister Ludwig Erhard, is talking about full employment, rising consumption, the increase in home-building, and the firmness of the German mark, which he compares favorably with the American dollar and the Swiss franc. By way of giving at his Social Democratic opponents, he makes slighting statistical allusions to Socialist Sweden and Denmark.

The Chancellor stands by his NATO foreign policy, but since he does not overstate it, he is not running into the mass demonstrations and the heckling encountered when he was pushing German NATO membership. Especially in areas like the Ruhr, he is getting ovations—stage-managed to some extent, but nonetheless impressive.

Industrialists like Alfred Krupp, of course, are solidly behind him. Even more than their employees, they appreciate the remarkable industrial recovery, from rubble to riches, achieved during his eight years in office. And that brings up another factor which may have induced the correspondent of The Manchester Guardian to say that the campaign's "idiom has been transatlantic"—in other words, American.

This is the financing of the electioneering. The West German constitution declares that political parties "must publicly account for the sources of their funds." This was to be implemented by specific legislation which has not yet been adopted. So, for the time being, German politicians are not bothered even by restraints as inadequate as those on American campaigns.

It is estimated that the German campaign is costing at least $12,500,000, exclusive of funds raised by such groups as the Working Association of Democratic Circles and the indirect but considerable help of Bonn's publicity machine.

The Socialists have 800,000 members who pay dues according to income, and who do campaign chores without pay. There are only 250,000 official members of CDU, yet the Adenauer party obviously commands greater resources.

It is rather surprising, too, that the lesser parties—some of them badly divided, and the strongest of them able to hope only for partnership in a coalition—have large campaign funds.

Money, of course, can come only from those who have it. These people have contributed much more generously than in 1953, partly because of a tax "reform" which exempts gifts for "civic" causes (including electioneering) from corporate and personal income taxes. The constitutionality of this arrangement has been questioned, but there will be no ruling on it before Election Day.

Such free use of money in a political campaign is disturbing in a democracy still in process of establishing its traditions and standards of political morality. It might be well if Bonn's parliamentarians gave a little thought to the efforts of men like Senators Hennings, Douglas and Gore to stiffen up campaign-fund controls in the United States.

Third Fatal Warning

The third fatal crash of a Navy jet plane within the St. Louis area, after taking off from Lambert-St. Louis Field, is the third warning of the seriousness of the hazard. It was only by a whim of fate that nobody was in either of the two houses that were destroyed in the crash in which the Navy pilot died.

The Department of Defense was supposed to have announced its selection by Sept. 1 of a site for a secondary field from which military flying would be conducted. But even after the selection it would be a matter of many months before the new secondary field could be in operation. Meantime, it would be wise to reduce the risk by barring Lambert to all itinerant combat-type planes whenever possible and requiring them to use Scott Air Force Base.

The pilot of an itinerant combat plane is not familiar with the local terrain. When he is confronted with a takeoff emergency, he must instantly head his plane for some relatively clear landing area such as a golf course, open field or cemetery. Otherwise he will crash in an inhabited area, at the possible cost of many lives. Scott Air Force Base, situated on an agricultural plain, is a far better place for all concerned when an emergency confronts the pilot of a combat-type plane.

Newport Has Guests

President and Mrs. Eisenhower, vacationing in Newport, are absorbing a very different brand of American scene from that at Denver or Augusta, other favorite vacation spots.

They continue a long line of famous visitors to the southern tip of Aquidneck Island, including George Washington, and Lafayette. But Rhode Island's "seaside Valhalla of swaggers," as the New York Morning Telegraph once called it, was ever something of a mixture, and Capt. Kidd the pirate swaggared there too, as did the later Astors and Belmonts and Stuyvesant Fishes.

In deference to the President, we place no credence in the Telegraph's long-ago estimate of Newport as "dull as a presidential message." There was certainly nothing dull about it when Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont took a dip in the surf carrying her green umbrella. Or when an English Army Officer visiting James Gordon Bennett Jr. rode his horse on a bet up the steps of the ultra-ultra Old Club, across the piazza and into the front hall. His guest card was taken up for it, and Bennett was so much annoyed he built the plush Casino as a rival.

In its early days Newport was a favorite with Southern planters because it reminded them of Charleston. It was a big slave market; another principal commodity was rum, made from West Indies molasses. After the 400 discovered Newport things really began to hum. Mrs. Pembroke Jones always set aside $300,000 at the beginning of every season for entertaining. A single party might cost $200,000.

Mrs. Ogden Golet had more than 1000 costumes, which her son sold after her death to Eaves's, the theatrical costumier in New York. Complete to the last detail, they are still worn to this day, by actresses in summer theaters playing "Lady Windermere's Fan" or "Peter Ibbetson," as Richmond Barrett tells in his book, "Good Old Summer Days."

The pinnacle was reached when Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt built the Breakers to outdo her sister-in-law's Marble House, which itself cost $2,000,000 to build and $7,000,000 to furnish. Grand Duke Boris said of this glittering summer resort then: "I have never dreamt of such luxury as I have seen at Newport. We have nothing to equal it in Russia."

Quite a memory-filled old port, in fact, Newport. We wish the President and his First Lady a happy new memory of it to add to the collection.

City Ceiling to Be Lifted

One of the City Charter's most serious defects is spotlighted by the controversy over the proposed hiring of a bond issue expediter at $18,000 a year. We refer of course to the $10,000 salary ceiling covering all municipal employees from the Mayor on down—a ceiling that incidentally does not apply to the patronage employees and their politician chiefs who run the city's so-called "county offices." Many of the latter officials are drawing 40 per cent more than the Mayor.

The Charter's salary ceiling may have been reasonable in 1914 when that instrument was adopted, but not so today. It is extremely difficult to obtain first-class administrators at that price. One of the reasons prompting former Mayor Kaufmann's return to private life was the city's salary policy. Mayor Tucker is serving at a sacrifice—indeed, it may be said that he is subsidizing the city treasury to a considerable extent.

The salary ceiling hurts all down the line. Two of the city's six "cabinet" posts are vacant because of the difficulty of finding engineers willing to take on the jobs at the city's pay scale. These are the post of president of the Board of Public Service, vacant since the death on Aug. 10 of Frank J. McDevitt, and that of Director of Public Utilities, vacant since Conway B. Briscoe resigned last Feb. 10 to take over as Water Commissioner. The post of Hospital Commissioner has gone unfilled since the death last Dec. 3 of Dr. Walter E. Hennrich.

Moreover, when the top man in any city department can earn no more than $10,000, the salaries of his assistants tend to be frozen somewhat below that level—and their assistants somewhat below that, and so on. The ceiling reflects the "We got a moon yet ain't it?" philosophy that $10,000 is plenty for any city job; after all, the only ones who hold them are politicians, aren't they? That may have been true in 1914 but not today; unless that ceiling is lifted or eliminated altogether the city can look forward to second-class service by second-class administrators. When that happens St. Louis itself will be second class.

When a Record Is Not a Record

Among the items that have gone over to the second session of the Eighty-fifth Congress is an amendment that Senator Neuberger of Oregon proposes for the Senate rules.

As it is now, Senators make their speeches on the floor, then go to the official reporter's transcript and make wholesale changes in the Congressional Record—if it suits them to do so. What Senator Neuberger asks in his proposed rule change is that the extensive practice of tampering with the record, that is, adding whole paragraphs or taking out things said, be prohibited by agreement of the Senate. He thinks it is proper to correct errors of speech, but improper to alter the sense to the point of falsifying what is supposed to be a historical record.

When Senator Neuberger made his suggestion (after the alteration of the record by Senator Kerr in connection with the Oklahoma's criticism of President Eisenhower's skill at finance), he invited other Senators to join him in sponsoring the rule change. At the end of the session only Senator Allott of Colorado had joined Senator Neuberger.

We can see no harm and much good in making the Congressional Record what it is supposed to be—a record.

As the Bell Rings

The autumnal grand march to school is under way, with 43,000,000 marchers. Here is a national parade which signifies the vast importance of the public school system to the future of democracy. But is that how the nation—or Congress, or the Administration—regards the march?

This year, according to Dr. Lawrence G. Derrick, Federal Commissioner of Education, some 1,700,000 additional pupils must be crowded into schools of all kinds. But the shortage of school facilities is particularly severe at the elementary and secondary levels. For here there are facilities for 30,000,000 pupils, and there will be 39,000,000 pupils.

Where is the country going to put those 9,000,000 students? The answer, of course, is that they will be put in the same schools that were inadequate last year and the year before.

Such large statistics are presented here by way of contrast with a smaller figure: 208 to 203. This was the narrow margin by which the House defeated a bill for federal aid for school construction, after President Eisenhower had failed to lead Minority Leader Martin's warning that a last-ditch effort was required to save the bill. That was in July.

So now it is September, and both Congress and the Administration should hear a ringing in their ears. It is the ringing of school bells for the parade to inadequate schools.

From Day to Day

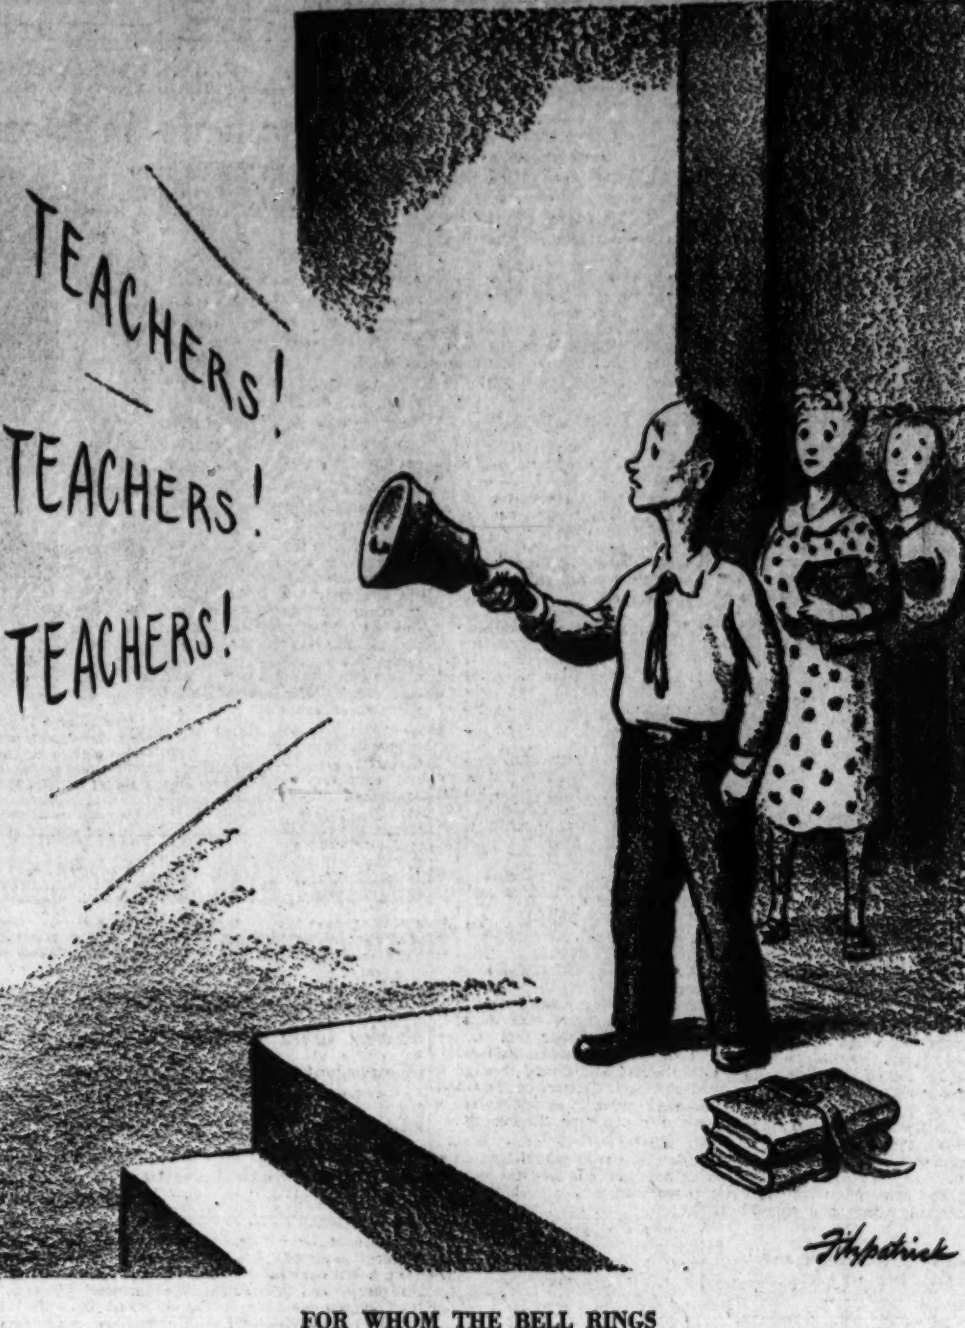

President Eisenhower could not be more right on anything than he is on the danger of inflation. Wage and price inflation is, as the Chief Executive told his press conference, "this country's major internal problem."

But is it enough for Mr. Eisenhower to sound these warnings from time to time? Is it enough for him to say, for example, that while he does not advocate a buyers' strike, everyone should buy carefully and not spend recklessly?

Mr. Eisenhower sounded his first alarms about inflation in 1952 when he entered politics as a candidate. The evil of inflation constituted a major theme of his first campaign for the presidency.

Yet the cost of living goes steadily up and the prospect is that it will continue to do so. Eventually the President and his advisers will have no choice but to face the issue squarely and decide what they are going to do about this steady decrease in purchasing power. Reports from Wisconsin say that the election there last week was in part a reflection of dissatisfaction over the month-after-month rise in living costs.

We are glad to see the President warning the country. We would feel better if he were outlining a White House program to keep inflation from stealing away vital defense dollars as well as undermining the livelihood of the increasing number of people on fixed incomes.

FOR WHOM THE BELL RINGS

Kentucky's Snubbed Senator

John Sherman Cooper finally parts with Eisenhower Republicanism over atomic energy issue; had stood by Administration on foreign aid, immigration, civil rights, tried to avert mistakes on Dixon-Yates, Hell's Canyon, TVA; now he is ignored.

An Editorial in The Courier-Journal, Louisville

What are Kentucky Republicans—or Democrats for that matter—to make of the fate which has been pushed upon the senior Senator from Kentucky?

For John Sherman Cooper, as Washington correspondent Robert Riggs made plain in his Courier-Journal dispatch, no longer feels able to represent his region as an Eisenhower Republican in the Senate.

Senator Cooper was elected as the archetype of what Republicans and Democrats alike thought of as Eisenhower Republicanism. This, so far as it could be analyzed from the President's cloudy rhetoric, was Republicanism with a heart, or at least with a mixture of New Dealism leaving its pious references to creeping Socialism and states' rights.

Senator Cooper, on the other hand, knew what he meant and meant what he said when he talked about modern Republicanism. As a Kentuckian, his Republicanism could embrace TVA because he knew from experience what it meant to his region.

As a logical man he could endorse public development of power resources without being led astray by such phrases as "creeping Socialism" because he had seen public power in action in a region which could not have prospered without it.

Closed Door at White House

But in spite of his knowledge and experience, his steadfast fight for administration measures—foreign aid, civil rights, liberalized immigration—he is ignored by the White House.

On the important issue of private versus public power he is rendered useless to the region he represents because his advice is not asked, his opinion is ignored and he himself, seems now to have decided that any recommendation by him would doom any suitable candidate for a directorship of the TVA.

Senator Cooper sought to save the President from the consequences of the Dixon-Yates scandal. He was ignored.

He tried to explain the importance of public development of the Hell's Canyon dam, and his reasons for voting for it. He was ignored. He is

Those Who Can, Teach

From the Washington University Parents Letter

Among the most absurd canards ever uttered by dullards creeping unwillingly to school is that old spillover for the teacher: "Those who can, do; those who can't, teach."

This barb could scarcely deter a born teacher from his calling, for his intangible rewards include rejuvenating contact with youth and the knowledge that the good one does is not interfered with his bones but can be, literally, endless in its influence.

That those who turn to teaching have other abilities of a high order is confirmed by legend and history. Democritus, pioneer atomic theorist, was a Greek philosopher and teacher. It is rumored Shakespeare—taught Latin. Rubens followed the Renaissance masters' practice of imparting his art and craft to innumerable apprentices.

That universal genius Leonardo da Vinci was convinced a man's critical (or teaching) faculty had to transcend his creative powers if he were to be capable of improving his own work much less that of his followers. Indeed, a certain amount of teaching comes naturally with parenthood and maturity. Teaching is virtually inseparable from the total function of being a man or a woman.

Examples close to home include Mayor Raymond R. Tucker of St. Louis, a former Washington University professor, who has enlisted other civic-spirited citizens in an on-going campaign that has focused national attention on our city.

Parents Letter plans to help inform parents as to the kind of persons who are teaching their sons and daughters. Aside from contradicting an infamous canard, this news can contribute to public reevaluation of the teacher's role. Such a reevaluation is essential, educators believe, if the nation's currently critical shortage of teachers at all levels is to be overcome.

Two Worlds of Okinawa
FIFTH DAUGHTER, by Hal C. Gurney. (Doubleday, 420 pp., $4.50.)
This novel of the two worlds of Okinawa is one of the brighter aspects of an army of occupation and a liberated people. As now (with the press full of the conflict of East and West epitomized by the unfortunate killing of a Japanese woman by an American soldier) the tight rope that must be walked by the military is forever perilous.

Even on an island like Okinawa whose sturdily pacific little people were not intimately concerned with the issues at stake and only wished to be left alone, this is so.

But war did come and devastate large sections of the beautifully green and undulating dragon-island and despoil its beaches, and the United States forces guarding the peace are a trial hardly borne by the proud and dignified citizenry. Among the most deeply affected are the young girls who go to work for the foreigners and leave the ways of their ancestors, to the confusion and dismay of their tradition-bound parents.

The Poor Butterfly theme is given freshness by the sensitivity of Mr. Gurney whose first novel reads like autobiography. His intuitive cognition of the girl, Sumiko, her family, and the ancient culture of her people have apparently been enhanced by historical research. Some of the passages are poetically beautiful and strongly moving, enveloping the tender love affair with the dreamlike quality of a never-never land. Other sections are brutally pitiless in dealing with the characters he has chosen as "typical" of the military scene.

Since long before Gaul was divided into two parts writers have harped on one note that threatens to keep twanging from here to eternity; this time-worn premise, presently attested to by the vastly diverting Sgt. Bilko, Pvt. Beetle Bailey et al. is that of the Good Little G.I. versus the Big Bad Officer. Everything fine and sensitive and worthwhile is instigated by the lowly soldier. Everything stupid, arrogant and muddle-headed is the work of some officer who only uses his head to keep his gold-braided cap off his be-medalled chest.

This is a favorite stance taken by young writers who in first person, often extremely singular, accounts tell the bitter-sweet story of their personal war on authority. Mr. Gurney (who like his protagonist was a civilian employee with Special Services on Okinawa) goes the old theme one better in lining up the Civilian Employee with the Good Joe against the B.B.O. This at least is a new angle! But the droll Pvt. Johnny Blake who sits with his feet on the captain's desk and assesses him is so far out of this military world that even far Okinawa cannot make him remotely believable.

Aside from the above attitudes, which I decry as a cynical disservice to national defense, I was quite carried away with "Fifth Daughter."

Britain's Scenic Beauties
PRESENTING BRITAIN, by G. Douglas Bolton. (Longmans, Green, $7.50.)
To seek to persuade us of the beauties of Britain seems like a work of supererogation, but a pearl is always worth the price and a lovely landscape is always worth writing about. This ingratiating volume is devoted to its entirety to the scenic beauties of Shakespeare's "scen'ic" isle. The author takes the reader on a series of excursions and tours which between them cover every county in England, Scotland and Wales. Being an Englishman, he writes about rhapsodizing, confining himself to pointing out high points along the way.

There is, in fact, more information in this book than exhortation. The 64 photographs are superb, and supply all the eloquence needed.

WALTER LIPPMANN

Wisconsin Reveals G.O.P. Split

WASHINGTON. IN THE WISCONSIN ELECTION last week the winner, Senator Proxmire, ran strongly both in the cities and in the rural counties. There is nothing unusual about a Democrat doing well in the cities, when he has, as Mr. Proxmire did, the full support of organized labor. But what happened in the rural counties, which are traditionally Republican?

Two things seem to have happened. There was, on the one hand, a protest vote by farmers, small business men and others, who were dissatisfied with the Eisenhower administration. On the other hand, the local Republican machine, controlled by the McCarthy wing of the party, seemed to have refused to work for Gov. Kohlert, who was running as an Eisenhower Republican. Thus both ends were against the Eisenhower candidate in the middle. The left wing was against him because the Administration policies have not done enough for the farmers and the small business men. The right wing was against him because Eisenhower is by its standard an obnoxious progressive.

Logically, this does not make any sense—that the Republican machines should connive at the election of a full-blooded Democrat, preferring him to a middle-of-the-road Republican. But the explanation is not difficult.

Professional politicians are primarily interested in securing and retaining the control of their own party organizations. They will always prefer to lose an election rather than to win an election and lose their control.

It is too early to say whether the Wisconsin election is a pattern of the shape of things to come. But it does show that there is a serious struggle for control within the Republican party.

There are powerful professional Republican politicians who would be quite prepared to lose the elections of 1958 and of 1960 if they could recover what they lost in 1956—their control of the Republican party.

It is already reasonably plain that President Eisenhower has not been able to unite and to lead his party, and that the struggle for control will become sharper and sharper. It is an interesting question, to which no one knows the answer.

PROTESTANTS AGREE

ON BELIEF IN CHRIST

But Disagree Sharply in Views on Bible, Survey Shows.

OBERLIN, O., Sept. 4 (UP)—American Protestants tend to agree in their beliefs about Jesus Christ, but they disagree sharply in their views on the Bible.

This was brought out today by an unprecedented survey of the "working faith" of church members in 10 major denominations. Results of the survey were presented to the North American Conference of Faith and Order.

The conference, which began yesterday, is an attempt to lay the groundwork for a reunion of Protestant and Orthodox churches in North America. Leaders of 47 United States and Canadian denominations are participating in the eight-day meeting on the campus of Oberlin College. The Roman Catholic Church sent two "informal observers."

The survey, conducted by a research group of clergymen and educators at Minneapolis, confirmed the suspicion of church leaders that there is comparatively little relationship today between a man's denominational affiliation and his doctrinal beliefs.

Among the 5704 Protestants who were polled, differences in belief were found to be as great or greater between members of the same denomination as between members of one denomination and members of another.

Similarly, agreement on cardinal points of faith cut across denominational lines. The researchers reported they found "very substantial" agreement on two doctrines which comprise "the essence of the Christian church."

In their answers to a questionnaire, 82 per cent of the clergy and 74 per cent of the laymen polled chose the description of Jesus Christ which "uniquely revealed the nature of God," a statement which researchers said "could imply divinity in a very broad sense."

On a closely related question, 90 per cent of the clergy and 84 per cent of the laymen affirmed the belief that Christ "mediates the forgiveness of sins to believers the forgiving grace of God in such manner as to be both Lord and Savior."

The "least agreement" was recorded on descriptions of the Bible. Twenty-one per cent of the clergy and 22 per cent of the laymen considered it the "infallible, verbally inspired word of God."

"Subject to Errors."

An additional 16 per cent of the clergy and 17 per cent of the laymen called it "the infallible word of God" but conceded that it may be "subject to errors in the transmission."

Twenty-five per cent of the clergy and 31 per cent of the laymen described the Bible as the "word of God" without claiming infallibility for it.

The largest single group, 32 per cent of the clergy and 24 per cent of the laymen, chose the statement that "the Bible is the unique historical record of God's revelations to inspired men."

The smallest group, 3 per cent of the clergy and 4 per cent of the laymen, called the Bible "one of several records of man's search for God."

In the keynote address of the conference yesterday, Episcopal Bishop Angus Dun of Washington, D.C., told the 500 delegates and observers that their presence reflected a common recognition that "God willed unity to His church."

Dun said the major purpose of the conference is to throw light on the "nature of the unity" which the churches should seek. He said the present conference would not seek to draft a specific plan for reunion.

"We are here to discuss our deepest bonds of unity and our honest differences in a spirit of frank, Christian conferences," Bishop Dun said.

TELEVISION SERIES

ON URBAN RENEWAL

Washington and St. Louis Universities to Sponsor KETC Programs.

Washington and St. Louis universities will sponsor an urban renewal program in which the principal activity will be a television series, "Operation Greater St. Louis," beginning Oct. 1 on Educational Station KETC, it was announced today.

Eugene I. Johnson, director of civic education and television activities at Washington University, said the purpose of the program, in which the universities will co-operate with civic agencies and organizations, was to help in solving metropolitan problems.

A two-day neighborhood leadership conference will be held Sept. 21-22 at Wildwood Springs Resort near Cuba, Mo. At that time, participants are to complete plans for 76 "viewing posts" at which citizens may watch and discuss the weekly TV programs.

Johnson explained that Tuesday evening programs will consist of a half-hour dramatic show at 8:30 o'clock, a discussion at 9:30 o'clock, a panel of experts will attempt to answer questions raised in the discussion interval.

The second, or "talk-back" section of the program will to some extent reflect the thinking of organized groups of viewers, numbering from six to about 16 persons. Their questions will be telephoned to KETC for consideration by the panel.

"The aim of the new TV series," Johnson said, "is to help close the gap between the thinking of the people in the community, and the thinking of the agencies which serve these people. It is hoped that people will get a sense of identification with the decisions that are made by their governmental officials."

Johnson predicted that the series might turn out to be a course in city planning, presented in practical and specific terms, as seen through the eyes of people in a particular neighborhood.

Mrs. Marian Weir, chairman of a committee that is providing overall direction for the urban renewal program, said another objective was to "encourage more people to take an active part in neighborhood organizations."

The program will be supported in part by Sears, Roebuck & Co. and The Ford Foundation. A similar project was undertaken by the Ford Foundation at San Bernardino Valley (Calif.) College, where Johnson was director of community education before coming to St. Louis in August 1956.

DR. WILLIAM WIRT KING DIES AT 95; METHODIST MINISTER

PETOSKEY, Mich., Sept. 4 (UP)—Dr. William Wirt King, former president of Ozark Wesleyan College, Carthage, Mo., prominent Methodist minister and writer, died Monday night in Little Traverse hospital. He was 95 years old.

NEED FOR TEACHERS

OF RETARDED PUPILS

City Would Add 50 to 60 More Classes if Instructors Were Available.

St. Louis public schools need 50 to 60 more teachers of mentally retarded children, William Kottmeyer, assistant superintendent in charge of elementary and special education, said today.

Addressing a meeting of elementary school teachers at Kiel Auditorium, Kottmeyer said seven new rooms for mentally retarded children have been added for the 1957-58 school year, bringing the total to 63.

If enough teachers of mentally retarded pupils were available, he said, 50 to 60 more rooms would be added. The meeting at the auditorium was the final session of a two-day training program for teachers in preparation for the opening of city schools tomorrow.

In co-operation with Washington University's program to establish a training program for teachers of mentally retarded children, a classroom with one-way glass has been prepared at Stix school so student teachers may observe methods, he said.

The number of classes for gifted pupils has been increased from 17 to 26. Kottmeyer related, and pupils participating in the program at the eighth grade level will take high school freshman courses in algebra, general science and French. High school credit will be given, he added.

In 12 schools, 17 "ungraded" classrooms have been added for children needing more training in fundamental skills and 18 remedial reading teachers have been hired, he said.

Reporting on the progress of school construction, Kottmeyer told the teachers that two new elementary schools will go into service tomorrow. They are the 24-room Peabody school at 1224 South Fourteenth street, which will serve the Darst Housing project area, and the Emerson branch school, 5438 Barmore avenue. It is a seven-room primary unit.

Other branch schools on which work is under way are Field, Riddick, Clark, Farragut, Humboldt, Arlington, Howard and an addition to Windsor school. Property is being acquired for a branch for Cote Brillante school. Most of the buildings are expected to be ready for the 1958-59 school year, he added.

VACATION DAYS ARE OVER for most Americans but the season for sales conventions and trips as a reward for sales

Full dress sales meetings come to around 2300 a year. Add in the regional conventions and the pep conclaves of small companies and the number is estimated as high as 70,000 by the half dozen or so agencies that run such affairs for corporations.

Sam Dawson The big national gathering, average out at a cost of $30,000 for big companies, although a convening of the corporate clan at Miami Beach may go as high as $220,000. The total spent on national sales conventions is estimated as $150,000,000 a year.

INCENTIVE SELLING WITH a trip as the prize is on the increase. The average trip is for a week to 10 days with wives usually included. Some of these come high. Example: The American Petroleum Institute's annual convention in the general area of New York City yielded for five months to increase sales 25 per cent. The value of the prizes totaled $300,000, involving 300 free trips to Europe for winning salesmen and their wives. One household appliance maker reports staging a 13-week promotion that sold 130,000 of its products. The cost of the campaign and the prize trips came to less than 5 per cent of the added sales volume.

HOW MUCH INDUSTRY
spends each year on these infor three days. The region pepper rallies bring in an average of 50 persons for about 10 days. Companies who hire outside agencies to run the trips and the sales conventions pay them a percentage of the total cost, often 10 per cent. The agencies say they can save money on the trips through experience and bulk buying. All they shoulder all the arranging and scheduling—and all the gripes.

DULLEST STOCK
PRICES SAGGING

By ELMER C. WALKER
United Press Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (UP)— Stock prices sagged today in the highest volume in two years.

The final prices were the worst of the day and they ranged to losses of more than 2 points in a long list of issues.
Metals, oils, chemicals, rails and copper were wide losers. Some of the metals slipped down 1 or 2 points. Aircrafts dipped fractionally to more than a point.

Special issues contributed to the wide losers and they produced a few substantial gains also.

Dynalene marked the entire session. At noon the sales volume was at its lowest since early in 1954. It picked up a trifle later and was at the worst since 1955.

(Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was 3.33 points lower at 482.60 at the close.
The 30 rails dropped 2.10 to 129.30 and the 15 utilities lost
1.10 at 127.90.)

(Standard & Poor's average of 400 stocks was 3.33 points lower at 45.05 at the close. The 425 industrials dropped 4.44 to 45.05, the 25 rails lost .37 at 23.87 and the 50 utilities slipped
1.10 to 21.31.)

Lack of demand rather than selling pressure brought the decline which ran to more than a point in a long list of issues.

Wall Street seemed to be waiting for more evidence of what business was going to do this autumn before making new commitments or selling more stock.

News of market importance balanced off such an item as a three-for-two split and a higher dividend for Standard Oil and an extension in the cuts in the copper price. Anaconda saying into line in that move today.

The split brought only a small rise in Standard and the copper cut did not too much damage to the copper. Sunshine Mining said its Washington State oil well was a success and its stock rose more than a point at its best.

Automobile issues sagged despite good reports on August production. Steels lagged despite news the industry was readily stepping up operations.
Nothing seemed to help the market, and nothing seemed to hurt it too much.

Boeing Airplane and Bethlehem Steel featured in volume.

The Associated Press reported that of 117 issues traded, 105 advanced, 10 declined and
2 were unchanged.

The Associated Press average of 30 stocks declined $1.40 to $17.70. The 15 industrials dropped $1.20 to $16.50 and the utilities down 30 cents to $16.30.

Volume for the day totaled 1,300,000 shares compared with 1,200,000 yesterday.

Based on the decline in the average, the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange had an estimated $1,700,000,000.

LONDON LEADERS FIRM

LONDON, Sept. 4 (AP)—The London Stock Market looked brighter today.

Leading shares were firm,
despite the news of an 80-million-pound ($224,000,000)
fall in Britain's gold reserves.

Government stocks went down about five shillings (70 cents) early in the day, but recovered and finished firm.

Oil shares went up, led by Shell with a rise of 3 shillings
10 pence to 203 shillings 10 pence ($28.54).

ROUTE OF DOOMED PLANE

Broken line traces route of jet from take-off to fatal crash in Berkeley. Pilot took off south on Runway No. 17, headed over the Lambert-St. Louis Municipal Airport administration building and then banked east. Dressings for Brussels Sprouts

By Edith M. Barber

A TART DRESSING OF LEMON JUICE AND PEPPER AND HEAPS OF SAUTÉED MUSHROOMS LIFT BRUSSEL SPROUTS, THOSE MINIATURE CABBAGES, INTO EPICUREAN REALMS.

HAVE you ever wondered why those small members of the cabbage family were given such a long title? Why are they called Brussels Sprouts? This mystery was solved for me some time ago on a journey from Amsterdam to Paris.

All through Belgium there were fields of low shrubs. These had heavy stalks from which grew branches literally loaded with the delicate green sprouts. These were served to us at restaurants with various dressings, butter, cream, sour cream or, at one special place, a sort of thin Hollandaise sauce. This was much like the sauce recipe to which I have given the name

"Michael"—in honor of my mother's family. Mushroom butter is another interesting dressing for Brussels Sprouts. It is particularly good if a little lemon juice is chosen as a flavoring.

In preparing sprouts, soak them in salted water before cooking. This will persuade any small insects which may have attempted to dine on them to leave them for us to enjoy. After draining, only a small amount of water should be used for cooking. This is in the interest both of flavor and of preserving the natural form, that of a miniature cabbage. Brussels Sprouts With Sautéed Mushrooms. One quart basket (1½ pounds)

Brussels Sprouts, ¼ pound fresh mushrooms, ¼ cup butter or margarine, two tablespoons lemon juice, ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Wash Brussels Sprouts and trim. Soak in salted water for 20 minutes. Rinse and place in saucepan in one-inch boiling water and one teaspoon salt. Cover and cook about five minutes. Drain. If necessary, wash and slice mushrooms, and sauté in butter or margarine about two minutes. Add to Brussels Sprouts with lemon juice and pepper. Yield: six servings.

After Brussels Sprouts are cooked, dress with cream and plenty of paprika.

People vs. Masses

By Fulton J. Sheen

A CIVILIZATION can have its ideas imposed on it from above by a dictator, as is the case in Russia and China; this is the way of dictatorship. But a civilization can also have its ideas made for it from below, that is by the masses. When everyone in a democracy reads the same news items, listens to the same commentators, sees the same images on screens, there is danger that thinking and creativity may begin to decline.

The masses are not the people. The Constitution of the United States speaks of the people, not the masses. The people differ from the masses inasmuch as they do not possess the great excitability nor psychological readiness for mental sameness. People are those who remain individual and self-determined with a sense of responsibility both to themselves and the community.

THE PEOPLE produce culture which is concerned with ends, while the masses produce civilization which is concerned only with means. Masses are characterized by an absence of personal originality, disposition to swim with the current at any given moment, a susceptibility to mental suggestion and propaganda, and standardization. The masses are made up of all groups, economic and social. It makes no difference to which class a man belongs, whether he be rich or poor, learned or ignorant, aristocratic or peasant, if he becomes imitative, he is still to be grouped with the masses. The masses can sometimes be more self-sacrificing than individuals, just as they can be more cruel and merciless. This fact is evident in revolutions and counter-revolutions. The ascendancy of the masses over the people can change any culture.

A MAN falls into the masses when he loses his capacity to think for himself and to seek out other sources of information than those peddled to everyone, or when he becomes fettered by standards and conventions. He then is no longer free on the inside, but completely controlled by the outside.

With free spirit cannot put up with social monotony. It is very likely that as persons become slaves of some habit which destroys their moral sense, they become victims for some external slavery, such as social conformism.

Just as personality is unity and mastery over self, so too the dissolution of personality is the falling apart into separate, self-affirming, emotional sensory elements which are organized by forces and influences outside oneself. Man who is already in slavery to his own ego cannot resist the slavery which comes from the non-ego.

PEOPLE who live in open spaces and in the country have more chance of retaining their personality than those who live in the city. They are less agitated by the cycle of birth and death; they fret less; they are more stable in time of crisis; they are much better integrated than the metropolitan person. But whether in the country or city, whenever a man ceases to be reflective, he becomes immersed in that social jelly, called the masses. As Rauching says: "Whenever the typical mass character becomes universal, all higher values are as good as lost."

To avoid mass culture, there must be a restoration of the value of a person. A personality is a little private area of selfhood in which one is conscious of his relationship to something above him and something around him, namely God. He is a particular vessel, but he carries an image of humanity. There is piety in personality because every person feels there has been something given to him. A person is also one who, whenever a man ceases to be reflective, he becomes immersed in that social jelly, called the masses. As Rauching says: "Whenever the typical mass character becomes universal, all higher values are as good as lost."

Worrying About a Child's Behavior

By Angelo Patri

WILL you please refer us to a good psychiatrist? Jimmy has suddenly started to hate us, says so, says no to the slightest request. He even refuses to go to bed when it is time and never before has he done this. We just don't know what to do.

First, calm down. Jimmy is 6 years old going on 7. Holding him to the same routine used on him since he was born might be one reason for his apparent rebellion. His parents worried attitude and helplessness might be reflecting on him and making him feel shaky about things in general. Also, and this is most likely, he wants to be treated in more grown-up fashion.

ASK the pediatrician to look him over to make certain there is no physical basis for his uneasiness. Talk to his teacher to learn if there is any cause in his school day for distrust and rebellion. But look very closely at the home routines for it is more than likely the fault if any, lies there. All children go through a period of No-ing everybody and everything, usually about three years. But it can happen again at this 6-to-7 age in some children and then we must look for the reason.

No normal child in good health will grow steadily and smoothly toward maturity. Each one at one time or another will astonish, even frighten his parents with some unusual demonstration of unacceptable behavior. Take this calmly. He won't fall apart suddenly. Take time to look at him and his background to determine why he is like this at this time.

A CHILD who has been talking well begins to stammer. Is he imitating a playmate? He starts using bad language, gets into rages. Is he associating with those who do this? Has he been given too many orders or is he just discovering he can make himself count? A little thought and a lot of common sense is a great help in these matters.

Unusual behavior is not a signal for a call on the psychiatrist, a very busy person whose attention is needed for the mentally disturbed patients he cares for. A wilful child, a troubled or angered child is no subject for this hard-worked professional man. Only when there are extraordinary difficulties as when the patient has a complexity of trouble should the psychiatrist be called in. The family doctor, the pediatrician, the clergyman and the teacher, each may be helpful. The psychiatrist is needed for the sick. Naughtiness is not illness. Just natural Adam.

They'll Do It Every Time

By Jimmy Hatlo

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

"I'm the most miserable girl," Dr. Popenoe writes Rita. "I'm five feet 10 and way above all the boys in my crowd. I feel so conspicuous when I'm with them! And I know they date me just because they feel sorry for me—probably draw lots to see which one will take the rap this time!"

JOYCE JACKSON has some pertinent comments on this in the revised edition of her "Guide to Dating" ($3.95 Prentice-Hall, Inc.) Your high school library should have it. Rita, "Some girls feel so self-conscious about their height that they walk with stooped shoulders," Miss Jackson remarks. "Providing their behavior is in other ways average, tall girls usually inspire confidence by their very height. They give impressions of strength and maturity without half trying! Some boys even prefer to date girls who are taller than they, as is evidenced by some of our best fiction. Stories in quality magazines often have heroines who are statuesque and tall."

"Notice particularly the heights of some of the couples high up in political circles. I could name any number of top Government officials whose wives are taller than they. And I can tell by the wives' admiring eyes that they are too busy being proud of their husbands' successes to give any thought to such a trivial matter as a difference in heights."

NO, RITA, you are concerned with the wrong qualities. There are a score of other things more important to your success in dating than the fact that you are five feet 10. Go to work to improve your technique of dating and let nature take care of your height.

You have one ready-made advantage that other girls don't. It may not be all-important, of course; but you, as a tall girl, can wear clothes beautifully!

Let's Explore Your Mind

Answer to Question 2. No, the trend is in the other direction. The age at marriage has steadily declined throughout this century, in spite of great increases in both military service and education. Grandpa at the turn of the century did not ask for Grandma's hand until he had been out of school for 10 or 12 years. Today a fellow considers getting married before his military service is over or his education is complete.

Answer to Question 3. Certainly! Dr. Leo Kanner, noted psychiatrist specializing in children, says that most children can make good adjustments, despite serious physical or mental limitations, if they are accepted as and for what they are.

In the Ozarks

A Greener Land Just Over the Fence

By Leonard Hall

ONE recent day, in company with Farm Forester Karl Tennant of the Conservation Commission and Ben Davis of Van Buren, we went timber cruising on our small tract of forest land in Carter county. This area is listed with the Forestry Division of the Commission as Forest Crop Land and we were interested in getting a report on both tree species and state of growth. Since Tiger, the setter, accompanied us and we were going to pick up Herb Davis at the Peck Ranch Wildlife Refuge to help us locate some of the boundaries, we made the expedition in two jeeps. With these we were able to follow many of the old logging trails along the ridges and down the steep hollows which are altogether impossible for an automobile. It was late morning by the time we met Herb at the old Williams Spring where our line joins that of Peck Ranch Refuge. Before starting out, we parked the cars in the shade of a big walnut tree and Ginie dug out the makings for sandwiches while we had a cold drink, built a small fire and put a pot of coffee on to brew. Afterward we unlocked the Refuge gate and drove down our road which follows the dry bed of Mill creek. This valley drains a big watershed, but the stream is like many other small creeks in the Ozarks. It has a deep bed of gravel, and there are evidently many faults in the underlying limestone. Thus the water runs underground except for a few hours after heavy rain. Some of it comes out in springs along the valley, but much of it finds its way into deep underground reservoirs whence it probably flows to help swell the volume of Big Spring at Van Buren.

WE HAD OUR topographic maps of the area and stopped along the valley at the mouth of each hollow. Here we would hike far enough in to get a good idea of the timber situation, noting the number of big old pine seed trees, the amount of young pine, and the number and condition of stems of the various hardwood species. It was hot work, for no air stirred in the deep valley and the sun beat down. Yet we found what we had come to see; chiefly that there were enough big pines to seed the area, with a good sprinkling of seedlings and young pines scattered throughout the area. In many places, but chiefly on north slopes which have advantage of coolness and moisture, the white and scarlet oaks were making fair progress. And the same condition held when we worked our way out along some of the high ridges.

IT WAS AGREED BY ALL of us that the chief thing needed here is what is known as a "release cutting." By this is meant the girdling of old cull trees—chiefly blackoak oaks—which have been damaged in the past by fire and insects and contain no timber of commercial value. This timber stand improvement, known as TSI, is standard practice on both State and National Forest lands and is recognized as the most valuable improvement practice that can be carried out in the Ozark forests. Often the young timber thus released will take a spurt and double its growth, while seedlings are no longer shaded and crowded out and are able to take root and establish themselves. During the last year or two, timber stand improvement has been made on one of the agricultural conservation practices on which help is given to the landowner in the Ozark counties and it is our hope that we can improve at least a small acreage this autumn. In fact, an area was selected for making a start—and here we hope to "release" some 20 to 40 acres of young pine.

THIS TIMBER TRACT has received excellent protection against fire, for it is in Fire Protection District administered by the Forestry Division of the Conservation Commission. This, of course, helps tremendously in promoting the growth of sound timber. Missouri's program for forest rehabilitation will never be complete, however, as long as great numbers of livestock roam at large in the timbered hills. Actual damage to young trees and seedlings by browsing, stripping of the ground cover and soil compaction by trampling—the latter causing rapid run-off and erosion on the steep hillside—are the results of overgrazing which are everywhere evident. When we came back out into Peck Ranch, the contrast between grazed and ungrazed land was so marked that I got out the movie camera and recorded the evidence. On one side of the fence where the land has been protected against grazing for a mere two years, lespedeza grows knee-high and there are many patches of bluegrass and volunteer red clover. Along the road embankments and in forest clearings, the beautiful and nutritious big bluestem grass has made a wonderful comeback, sending out its "turkey foot" seed-heads at a height of six feet or more. On the other side of the fence, where the land has been protected against grazing for a mere two years, lespedeza grows knee-high and there are many patches of bluegrass and volunteer red clover. Along the road embankments and in forest clearings, the beautiful and nutritious big bluestem grass has made a wonderful comeback, sending out its "turkey foot" seed-heads at a height of six feet or more. Along the road embankments and in forest clearings, the beautiful and nutritious big bluestem grass has made a wonderful comeback, sending out its "turkey foot" seed-heads at a height of six feet or more.

WHILE THE CONTRAST here was particularly noticeable to us because we own the land on the "wrong side of the fence," it is also interesting in a broader sense. Here is a wonderful example of man's impact on landscape, changing it from one of productivity and beauty to one of poverty. On the Refuge side of the fence was an equally impressive example of Nature's ability to reassert herself and to rebuild her life-carrying capacity when given an opportunity to do so. It would be a fine thing, I think, if every Missouri forester, farmer, timberland owner and legislator could look at what we saw that afternoon—since it would be impossible not to draw conclusions and learn some lessons from it.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

DEAR MRS. POST: For many years, my husband and I belonged to a card club with five other couples. Through a misunderstanding, which incidentally I had no part in, one of the couples dropped out and the woman became very bitter, not only to the person responsible for the misunderstanding but to all the other members as well. Recently the only son of her sister was married and my husband and I were invited to the house to see the wedding presents. We arrived rather late and the only guests present were the immediate members of the family, some of whom were from out of town and we hadn't seen in a number of years. I started around the room to greet each one—extending my hand with a word of welcome and when I came to the woman who had dropped out of the club, I did the same. She stared at me coldly and ignored my extended hand. Under these circumstances and knowing she was angry at me, was I wrong in attempting to greet her?

Answer: Her behavior was inexcusably rude, but even if she had already cut you, or given you reason to think that she would, it would have been better for you not to have greeted her.

DEAR MRS. POST: Whenever someone pays me a compliment I get very flustered and never know what to say. Will you please help me?

Answer: Smile with pleasure as you say, "Thank you," and then talk about something else. Remember that looking pleased is not necessarily an act of vanity but of appreciation of the other person's kindness.

Womanpower

By Stan Delaplane

I HAVE READ three newspaper articles and a magazine story recently on a subject called "Womanpower." I think this proves two things: I have little to do with my time; summer television is very poor this year.

STAN DELAPLANE

of the national work force. None at all with the 40 per cent of the wages earned. It has been my observation when a lady lays her pinkies on a bit of glue, she considers it sacred. Nobody else should even handle it. A lady will be cleaning up around the house. She runs her hand down inside the chair—behind the cushion. If I run my hand behind the cushions, I usually run a pin an inch into my thumb. But ladies will probe around in your favorite armchair and come up with a quarter every time. She regards this as her very own. Immediately she gets on the pipe.

"So I was looking in the armchair—you know, the one with the chintz cover where I dropped the darned needle the other day. And I THOUGHT I felt something. And it turned out to be a $5 bill! Heaven knows when I dropped it there."

Well, I know when it was dropped there, madam. It dropped out of my pants pocket, that is what. But you cannot tell a woman that. A plain statement of fact like that can lead to two hours' argument. Bringing in the current state of the wardrobe; how many times we have been out to dinner in the past month; the effect of nagging on a person's health. It is not worth five skins.

I NOTE in the "Womanpower" thing that many ladies are taking up heady pursuits. They become budget analysts. Engineers and production statisticians. A good many ladies I encountered in my salad days were in the burlesque business. But nothing is said about that.

The "Womanpower" report was done by ladies. I gather they were interested only in high types of employment.

I DO NOT FIND any mention of ladies I interviewed in the interests of Womanpower.

There was Sally Rand who galloped around behind a bubble. Gypsy Rose Lee who wrote a book about it. Margie Hart who was the first peeler to hide behind a covey of trained pigeons while all the customers threw popcorn on the stage, the sly dogs.

Speaking of womanpower, where is the statistical background on bank robbers? A little old lady in gold-rimmed glasses, called "Granny" by the admiring Los Angeles press, who sacked up two piggies for $3800?

Granny was womanpower. She shoved a note through the wicket:

"Act natural. Give me all your money. There are three guns on you."

No credit lines are in the report for 75-year-old Lucy Elizabeth Ledford Worthington. Otherwise known as "Lucy the Dip."

"I am not really a pickpocket," said Lucy. "People just keep leaving money where it's easy to get."

Nobody like this gets into the report. And I think it will give Mr. Eisenhower a one-sided view on "Womanpower." Everybody must be represented. The $5 behind the sofa cushion. The peeler in the blue light. And Ma Barkis with the scattergun in the attic and the cookies in the jar, cookies.

Living for Children

By Ruth Millett

"WE seem to have so little in common now that the children are grown." If young wives only knew how often that admission crops up in letters to this column from middle-aged wives, it might make them see what a mistake it is for a woman to "live for her children."

A young wife doesn't use the old-fashioned term, "living for her children," when she falls into the habit of always putting them first. But that is exactly what she is doing "living for her children," and through her children, being first, a mother and then a wife.

And the years pass by and one day—sooner than she can ever realize it will happen—the children are grown and gone from home. There is no one left but husband and wife. And because about all that she has thought, talked, or planned for through the years has concerned the children, the couple find they have little left in common.

And whom does the wife blame for that sad and depressing state of affairs? Herself? No, she blames her husband. Somehow she had always expected that when she finally got around to having time for him he would be eager and ready to begin to build a new kind of life with her. Instead she finds that he has grown accustomed to going his own way, finding companionship away from home.

The wife who is too preoccupied with her children almost always finds that her husband is too busy to bother with being a companion to her once the children are grown.

Try and Stop Me

NATURE lovers can have a field day with Edwin Teale's "Autumn Across America" (Dodd Mead), a companion volume to his previously published "North With the Spring." Even so well-informed an exurbanite as Orville Prescott confessed that such items as the following were new to him:

1. On one day in the hunting season, three million pheasants were slaughtered in North and South Dakota alone.
2. Harvester ants close the doors of their nests with pebbles at night and open them again in the morning.
3. Salmon identify the birth and the pool where they were hatched by the smell of the water. When salmon start up a fresh-water river to spawn they stop eating and never eat again before they die, sometimes two months later.
4. One billion fern fronds are picked in Washington and Oregon each year and shipped to florists in the 46 other states.

Lightweight Themes for Fall

By Sylvia Stiles

SUMMER weather but an autumn calendar presents a problem for the fashion-wise St. Louis woman. Early September, from the temperature standpoint, suggests the wearing of hot-weather clothes—but from the viewpoint of the woman who lives to dress according to a new fashion season, it suggests a new fall wardrobe.

To combine fashion emphasis with practical qualities, St. Louis stores are featuring lightweight dresses that have the look of autumn. Knitted themes, fabrics combining cotton and wool, two-piece dresses that look like suits—all these are a part of the scheme to guarantee the wearer a smart appearance. Illustrated are some of the modes available in the St. Louis stores.

1—An imported rayon fabric that has the look and the feel of cashmere was used for this one-piece dress that would be especially suitable for the business woman or for the shopper. The bodice is finished with a white knitted band shaped to form a turtle neckline. A deep fold of the fabric is graduated from neckline to waistline for soft fullness. Skirt is slender and has a hemline pleat. Dress is available in shades of gray and cocoa brown in sizes from 10 to 18.

2—A checked pattern in a Vivella flannel which is very light weight and combines wool and cotton was used for this tailored dress which is cut to give the effect of a wrapped skirt. The bodice is cut on the bias to contribute to the decorative emphasis of the fabric. Deep armholes, a Peter Pan collar and dark colored piping are among the details that contribute to the impressiveness of this popular-priced design.

3—The Chanel silhouette is interpreted here in a dress that gives the two-piece effect although it actually is a design in which the overblouse and skirt are attached. The overblouse is eased at the neckline and the waistline, blousing slightly at the back where it is held with a wide belt. Neckline introduces the V line that is filled in with a chiffon scarf. Armholes are deep, and shoulders are rounded. A cluster of little hearts at the neckline of the skirt suggests a fob arrangement. Fabric is wool in a choice of Capri blue, red and beige tones. Junior sizes are available.

4—This two-piece dress is designed to be worn also as a suit for crisp autumn days. It has the new very full, gathered peplum that is characteristic of many of the couturier designs. A Martini creation, it is made of wool jersey in cocoa brown, black or pine green shades. Both overblouse and skirt are completely lined. The overblouse has a high double-breasted fastening, a rolling collar and deep armholes. Contour belt is shaped to accentuate the bloused line at the back.

5—The simple knitted dress is one of the most popular fashions of the new season. It is shown here in a neutral tone that is designed as "no color" because it is suitable for a variety of accessory shades. Actually it is a soft, muted tone of beige. The elasticized waistline, the V neckline, wide points on the convertible collar, the slightly bloused back, and the three-quarter length sleeves that are noticeably wide are among the features that stamp it as definitely a new style. Price is moderate, too, and sizes range from 10 to 16.

6—A cross-striped Vivella flannel which is washable was used for this smartly styled dress combining shades of blue with black. The Mandarin collar of the flannel is covered with a detachable collar of white faille trimmed with black grosgrain ribbon. The fuller sleeves are gathered into a turned-back cuff. Dress has a bloused back and a slim skirt.

The fashions illustrated here are available in St. Louis Shops. Patterns are not obtainable. For information call MAin 1-1111, Station 186, between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. Monday through Friday, or mail self-addressed stamped envelope to Fashions Illustrated, St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Painting Fresh Wood

By Hubbard Cobb

MOST of us know that you just can't slap a fresh coat of paint over old paint that is peeling, blistering or has chipped off in spots, and come out with a good job. We know that you have to do a little surface preparation. When it comes to painting unpainted wood, however, a lot of us forget all about surface preparation and just go ahead and paint. Often the result is nothing to brag about.

Fresh lumber often is coated here and there with grease or wax and for this reason you should give it a cleaning before you attempt to paint. A rag dampened in turpentine is fine for this job. If there are dirt streaks on the board, wipe or sand them away. For knots and sappy spots in the wood the standard treatment is to wipe them down with turpentine and then coat with shellac or aluminum paint. If you don't do this, the sap may bleed through the paint after the paint is dry. It the sap appears excessive, warm the wood with a blow torch. This brings a lot of the sap to the surface where it can be removed with the turpentine. After this, apply the shellac or aluminum paint. With certain kinds of wood there will be a hard smooth surface due to the resins in the wood pores and this must be washed down with turpentine so that the paint will be able to get into these pores and get a good bond.

In the less expensive grades of lumber you may find rough spots and rough edges due to incomplete planing in the manufacturing process. These areas will require a little work with sandpaper, rasp or even plane before they are suitable for paint. Remember, you can't cover surface imperfections with paint.

Many cooks like to frost the sides of a layer cake before spreading the icing over the top.

The Bridge Deck

FRED L. STARBUCK made a doubled grand slam at spades with today's South cards by dropping West's singleton king of hearts and then picking up East's jack on a finesse. The hand was played at the West Side Tennis Club and our friend observes that "the cards were very kind."

West opened the king of diamonds and declarer took it with the ace and ruffed a diamond with dummy's eight of spades. He returned a heart from the board, East played small and South after some thought went up with the ace, refusing the finesse. On the bidding he decided that West probably held the king of hearts, so the finesse would lose. His only hope was to drop the king and this was a good bet, since West's strong two-suit bidding placed him with shortness in hearts.

When the king fell under the ace, the grand slam was home. Starbuck ruffed his last diamond with North's 10 of spades, led the spade three to the ace and continued the king-queen-jack, drawing trumps. Then he entered the board with the ace of clubs, took the proven finesse of the heart 10 and claimed the rest, making seven spades, doubled.

Answer.

Declarer makes his spade slam by discarding two clubs from dummy so that he can ruff one club, setting up his fourth card in the suit. He wins the second round of trumps, plays the ace-king of clubs and follows with three rounds of diamonds, discarding two clubs from dummy. He ruffs a club in dummy and with a 3-2 split his fourth club is now good. He discards the diamond four on the heart ace, enters his hand by ruffing a heart, draws trumps and claims the rest.

Words, Wit And Wisdom

By William Morris

Vocabulary Game

MANY of us wonder about the exact meanings of words we have run across again and again in reading but never used in conversation. Here are 10 words which you certainly have a nodding acquaintance with, but are you sure you can use them accurately in speech and writing?

The way we play, of course, is to select the lettered word or phrase closest in meaning to the numbered word. After you have finished all 10 questions, check against the answers below. Score 10 points for each correct answer. A score of 100 per cent is excellent. But if you score 80 or below, get out the dictionary and do some homework.

1. Friable: (a) cookable atop stove; (b) ready for entry to monastery; (c) easily powdered.
2. Gaucherie: (a) awkward or tactless act; (b) armband; (c) loud-mouthed bragging.
3. Germinate: (a) descended from Teutons; (b) inspire gossip; (c) cause to sprout.
4. Hookah: (a) measure for spirits; (b) Oriental water pipe; (c) compartment on elephant's back.
5. Insularity: (a) protected from electric shock; (b) inside information; (c) narrow-mindedness.
6. Gerontocracy: (a) government by old men; (b) Utopian society; (c) rule by elderly females.
7. Frigate: (a) pirate chieftain; (b) sailing warship; (c) container for medicine.
8. Gannet: (a) web-footed water bird; (b) fresh-water fish; (c) deep red stone.
9. Garrote: (a) attic hideaway; (b) strangulation; (c) Spanish saddle.
10. Prissy: (a) spirited dancing; (b) gaudy clothes; (c) waxy lubricant.

Answers: 1-c; 2-a; 3-c; 4-b; 5-c; 6-a; 7-b; 8-a; 9-b; 10-b.

Debutantes Make Bows At Dance at St. Albans

By Margaret Allen Ruhl

MRS. AND MRS. GILBERT K. TRIMBLE and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Griffith Butler took over Old Barn Inn, at St. Albans last night for the debut dinner dance of their daughters, Miss Judith Ellen Trimble and Miss Suzanne Carol Butler.

The party was informal in character. About 150 guests motored to the picturesque inn about 6:30 o'clock, had cocktails and dinner on the patio to music by a small string orchestra and danced to Russ David's band afterward.

Today Miss Trimble will meet her mother's friends at her second party, a reception from 4 to 8 o'clock at the Trimble home, 5315 Waterman avenue.

At last night's party the two girls and their parents received their guests in the garden. Dinner was served upon a buffet table, decorated with a wrought iron spig, filled with red carnations and green grapes, before the fireplace in the dining room. Dinner tables, each lighted by Williamsburg-type hurricane globes surrounded by the red blossoms and greenery, were arranged on the patio.

Miss Trimble wore a softly fitted powder blue silk and-cotton dress, the skirt dished into barrel shape. Groups of vertical pin tucks on both skirt and bodice were accented with small dyed-to-match lace flowers.

Mrs. Trimble was in crisp navy blue silk and cotton, the low neck drapery drawn to one side and held by matching lace flowers which also adorned one side of the short bell skirt.

In contrasting shade, Miss Butler was in peach silk organza with a matching satin fitted midriff. The sheath skirt had back fullness. Mrs. Butler's gold-colored princess gown of chantilly lace over taffeta in the same shade was applied at the neck and at the knees with gold taffeta bands.

The debutantes carried antique silver flower holders filled with mixed summer blossoms to harmonize with their dresses. Mrs. Trimble's flowers were white carnations; Mrs. Butler's gardenias.

Tea Today for Miss Trimble.

ABOUT 125 of her mother's friends will meet Miss Trimble at her second party today. The debutante and her mother will receive in the gray-walled living room before red roses and ivy, contained in brass and crystal holders, at the fireplace. The flower tones harmonize with the draperies.

At her tea Miss Trimble, called Judy, will wear lemon yellow chiffon, the bodice trimmed with drapery shirred over the shoulders to form sleeves and ending in back, held in place by lace applique. The skirt billows into six-yard hem.

Yellow roses and fresh violets are combined in the dining table centerpiece, a crystal and silver epergne. Serving will be the following debutante friends of the guest of honor: Miss Jane Conant, Miss Suzanne and Miss Letitia Butler, Miss Robyn Roessler, Miss Mary Ann Elliott, Miss Marcia Willis and Miss Evelyn Singer.

Both Miss Butler and Miss Trimble attended Mount Holyoke College last year, and both are Mary Institute graduates. Miss Trimble will transfer to Washington University this fall.

Miss Newcomb Bride at Ladue Chapel.

MISS SARA CATHERINE NEWCOMB, daughter of Mrs. Jerrel Newcomb of New York, and Robert Louis Thompson were married Sunday afternoon at Ladue Chapel by the Rev. Dr. W. Davidson McDowell. Afterward the bride's mother gave a garden reception at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Evans Stuart, 27 Willow Hill, Ladue.

Mrs. Stuart attended her sister as matron of honor and Miss Stuart's father-in-law, Lewis B. Stuart, gave the bride away. Miss Frances Therese Kersey, New York, and Mrs. Thomas M. Moore (Eleanor Chouteau Johnson) were bridesmaids. The bride was an attendant at Mrs. Moore's wedding two years ago.

Mr. Thompson, son of Mrs. William George Thompson, New York, and the late Mr. Thompson, was Donald A. Cook Jr., New York, as best man. Ushers were Donald A. Cook Jr., New York, and Lynn Stuart.

The bride wore a white peau de soie gown and a long tulle veil, both trimmed with Spanish lace, and carried a bouquet of white roses. Her attendants wore in moss and mint green printed silk dresses. They wore moss green velvet hairbands and held bouquets of white full chrysanthemums and ivy.

The former Miss Newcomb's father is Harold Newcomb, Esq. Moines, Ia. An alumna of the Spence School, New York, the bride attended Vassar College and was graduated last year from Columbia University. She made her debut at the Debutante Cotillion in New York in 1952.

Mr. Thompson attended Columbia College and was graduated from the School of Engineering in 1946. He did graduate work in chemistry; was awarded his M.A. degree in psychology in 1953, and expects to receive his Ph.D. this year, all at Columbia University. This fall he will teach at Columbia College and will continue a research project at Rockland State Hospital. He and his bride will live in New York.

MISS ANN LUEDINGHAUS, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert H. Luedinghaus, was guest of honor today at a luncheon given by her aunt, Mrs. Burnet Critten at Mrs. Critten's home, 9840 Lititzinger road, Ladue.

Small tables arranged on the terrace were decorated with yellow fall flowers in which roses predominated. Miss Lee Wallace, Garden City, L.I., and Miss Beverly Day, Plainfield, N.J., classmates of the guest of honor at Smith College, were present with the following debutantes:

Miss Ellen Baker Armstrong, Miss Nancy Baker, Miss Nancy Buford, Miss Suzanne Butler, Miss Barbara Clark, Miss Carol Culver, Miss Jane Cunningham, Miss Coriel Desloge, Miss Mary Ann Elliott, Miss Judith Giesler, Miss Nancy Green, Miss Virginia Lane Haas, Miss Priscilla Hocker, Miss Emily Keyes, Miss Kathryn Lungstrass, Miss Andrea Maxwell, Miss Nancy McKinley, Miss Mary Morey, Miss Josephine Calhoun Noel, Miss Nancy Nolan, Miss Robyn Roessler, Miss Ellen Blair Smith, Miss Jane Spehr and Miss Julianne Williams.

AUTHOR REVEALS CAUSES OF JUVENILE DELINQUENCY

Marys Haines, author of "Houses to Hell in 24 Hours" and "Juvenile Delinquency in America," states in his latest pamphlet that the cause of juvenile delinquency are the same all over America. Juvenile delinquency should be the concern of every American, regardless of race. Most of the crimes committed by young delinquents could have been prevented if parents, teachers and the community had not shifted their proper responsibilities to our nation's youth. You may be shocked when you read Mr. Haines' opinion on the causes of this national scourge in "The Rise and Fall of Juvenile Delinquency." The truth about this is that Mr. Haines does not just talk... he gives positive reasons. For your copy of this valuable pamphlet, send this coupon to: Marys Haines, Dept. Martha Carr's

Dear Martha:

I HAVE been married almost three months. We are very much in love and talk things over fine. But last week the mother of a boy I almost married before I met my husband called and wants us to come over and bring the wedding pictures and stay real good friends. Our mothers are very good friends and this would suit my mother fine because she wanted me to marry him. I think you can still keep old friends after you are married, but my husband thinks that is asking too much of him to go spend the evening and be on display. He said if we ran into them that would be different but to visit back and forth is too much. They were not invited to our wedding because my mother thought it would put them in an embarrassing situation, and my husband thinks he is entitled to the same consideration. I am up a tree. I like people. My mother thinks my husband is too definite in his opinion that we should work out our own problems. When he is not with me, mother just drops little hints to show me I should have married the boy she picked out. But I love my husband and he loves me. He thinks both mothers should leave us alone and let us work out our own problems and make new friends of our own. Mother never bothered me before. In fact, sometimes I think she forgot I was around. I want to keep peace. I am married to a wonderful fellow, with high ideals, ambitious, good-looking and a one-gal man.

CONFUSED.

And the best way to keep him is to see that your mother doesn't interfere. He is absolutely right in that you and he together should work out your own problems. And, frankly, I can't say I blame him for not wanting to go to your former boy friend's home where he could be made to feel the outsider and everyone else—your former beau, his mother and your mother—would be aligned against him. It may be that he is too sensitive about it but as long as he feels that way, don't force him to go. Make some excuse and tell your mother's friend that you hope you can see her soon but don't make a definite date. Perhaps you can run over to her home some afternoon with the wedding pictures if she wants to see them, without placing your husband in an awkward spot. And don't listen to your mother when she hints that you married the wrong man. In fact, if she starts dropping hints, just tell her straight out that you know you made the right choice and that you love your husband. From what you say, he is a good man and you would be disloyal to him to talk behind his back about the one you might have married.

Dear Martha:

PLEASE ASK MRS. BEWILDERED, who wants to tell the wonderful husband about his awful wife seeing other men, if this is all she can do—to find fault with someone else. It is not for her to judge another person. Why is it that she knows several young women who are seeing men while their husbands are away and this is the only couple she wants to separate? She must hate this woman. How do you know, Mrs. Bewildered, how good this woman's husband is? I HATE GOSSIP.

IN ANSWER TO Jean and Pam: Most young people's organizations affiliated with churches or with such agencies as the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. have philanthropic projects as well as their own social activities, so by joining one or more of these groups, you could combine your twin wish of meeting new friends and helping others. Also, there is a great need in the community for volunteer service in various agencies such as day nurseries and homes for the aged. Miss Betty Bone of the Volunteer Service Bureau, Social Planning Council, 505 North Seventh street, will be glad to discuss these opportunities with you. Call her at GARfield 1-3800 for an appointment.

Are you planning a shower for a bride-elect or mother-to-be? Martha Carr's free shower leaflets will help you decide on entertainment, invitations and refreshments. Be sure to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Wives Can Help

By Josephine Lowman

IT IS a startling fact that in the United States alone there are around 7,000,000 widows. The majority of their husbands died, not in old age, but during the productive years of their lives.

There is much more likelihood that you will be a widow than that your husband will be left alone. Why is this? No doubt many factors play their part, one of the most important being the pressure the average man feels in providing the standard of living his family expects. Men literally work themselves to death to give those they love what they themselves want them to have. Of course, in some instances personal ambition drives men on past their endurance, but more often it is the needs and desires of their families.

TOO MUCH DRIVING of himself and too little relaxation, too much weight and too little exercise, too much sudden strenuous exercise for which his body is not trained, too few interests outside his work, too much strain and too little laughter, too much criticism and not enough praise; all of these have a part in shortening the life expectancy of men.

You, his wife, can play a terrific role in keeping your husband alive. You can see that his nutrition is in line with the latest findings of science. If he is overweight you can plan menus which are attractive and tempting but not fattening. You can nag him (if necessary) in order to get him to the doctor for regular physical examinations.

Probably more important than anything, you can see to it that your home is a relaxing, warm, gay, "un tense" oasis for him. You can encourage him in exploring any hobbies he may like. You can indulge in mild exercise such as swimming, golf or walking with him.

YOU CAN PROVIDE an opportunity for rest when he first comes home after a day's work. You can control your social life so that he is not expected to work all day and stay up all night.

You can let him know that you would much rather have him than a lot of money to enjoy alone later on. Actually I feel certain that many wives of successful men would trade some of their luxuries for more companionship; would be as happy as larks with much less money and much more time with their husbands. But, life gets both husband and wife by the throat. It takes so much more money to live comfortably today, than it used to. The years pass and these things are left unsaid and hardly realized. It requires thought and planning to sidestep this situation.

A man is under terrific strain when he has to battle the world at his office and then come home to hecticness and pessimism. The woman in the home can do much to help her husband avoid that heart attack, that stroke and many other maladies to which he may fall heir.

Personalized Pattern—A Suit for Fall and Winter

A suit with a William Popper label bespeaks quality, style and perfectly proportioned measurements for that enormous cross-section of our population in the half-size category.

This lined model with top-stitching on the front panels that extend into the sleeves is accurately sized to eliminate the tiresome altering of the pattern that so often destroys beautiful line balance.

A suit to start the fall season and wear all winter under your coat, it is best translated in smooth wools, surfaced fabrics like tweed, and for dressier dates, in faille and certain novelty cottons.

From this size chart select the one size best for you:

Length From Nape of Neck to Waist	Length From Nape of Neck to Hip
14 1/2 37 1/2 29 1/2 37 1/2 in. 16 in.	16 1/2 38 1/2 31 1/2 39 1/2 " 18 1/2 in.
16 1/2 39 1/2 31 1/2 39 1/2 " 18 1/2 in.	18 1/2 41 1/2 33 1/2 41 1/2 " 19 1/2 in.

Pattern A-2091, size 16 1/2 requires three yards of 54-inch material for two-piece suit.

Happy Event—A Second Wedding

By Amy Vanderbilt

THE re-marriage of a widow and a widower is an especially happy event. It means that two people will not have lonely later years. Here is a letter from a reader about such a wedding.

"DEAR MISS VANDERBILT: Would you please tell me how far back we should go in our family when my mother, a widow, and a man who is a widower, marry this fall? A church wedding.

"In the widow's family, there are four children and 14 grandchildren, numerous nieces and nephews, one sister-in-law, one brother-in-law and wife, and in-laws on her first husband's side. The widow was an only child.

"In the widower's family, there are two children and six grandchildren. There is no other family on his side, except two sisters in the West who wouldn't be able to come to the East. Only one child could attend, too.

"The widow's children would like to have a small reception after the church wedding. We are, also, at a loss to know who and how many we are supposed to invite to the reception, which will be held at one of the homes.

"Is it possible to invite these relatives and close friends to the church and not include them to the reception? The reception would be just a buffet luncheon, and wedding cake. Is this proper and correct to have for a second wedding?—Mrs. L.B."

THE BEST THING in a case like this is for you to invite to the wedding reception, if you wish, all those you have mentioned, even those who are too great a distance to come. They will be happy to have received the invitation.

The wedding itself should be limited, as to the number of witnesses, as second weddings always should be. Therefore, invite only the immediate relatives and the witnesses and per-

How to Tell Whether Boy Likes You

By Elinor Williams

DO you know how to tell if a boy really likes you? "Actions speak louder than words," so you're his favorite party-doll if:

He asks you for a date whenever possible and shows consideration about taking you home on time.

He telephones you occasionally between dates "just to say hello."

He's polite to your parents and nice to your little brother or sister.

He remembers a dress you wore or a song you liked on a previous date.

He notices the color of your eyes or compliments your appearance.

He never "stands you up" without telephoning to let you know that he can't make it and why. He also calls to let you know if he's going to be late.

He often makes another date with you before saying good-night.

He listens with interest when you talk, confides his future plans or ambitions to you and never flirts with other girls while he's with you.

He respects your wishes when you prefer not to smoke, drink, park or neck—and never urges you to do anything you prefer not to do.
